BLM moves upstate, protests to hit Columbia

Welcome Table SC encourages discussions on race relations

September Dates to know

Welcome Table SC encourages discussions on race relations

Brittany Franceschina — 9/20/16

Issues of race and reconciliation at USC will be the focus of an interactive series of dialogues called Welcome Table SC, hosted by the Office of Diversity and Inclusion.

The idea was introduced by the William Winter Institute for Racial Reconciliation at the University of Mississippi, where they’ve been using it for years.

“They’ve been doing this work about bringing small groups of people together to engage in the kinds of conversations that, at first, bring down the barriers that exist between people to open them to having the dialogue to begin with,” said John Dozier, chief diversity officer and director of community engagement. “And we thought that was such an appropriate space for us and a space that we as a university could absolutely help... maybe even outside of our university.”

Events close to home such as the shooting of nine people at Mother Emanuel Church and the controversial removal of the Confederate flag are what sparked the need for this forum.

They “opened wounds of race and exposed maybe some of the real challenges that come from the fact that we’re not November Dates to know

Welcome Table SC encourages discussions on race relations

Brittany Franceschina — 11/18/16

Issues of race and reconciliation at USC will be the focus of an interactive series of dialogues called Welcome Table SC, hosted by the Office of Diversity and Inclusion.

The idea was introduced by the William Winter Institute for Racial Reconciliation at the University of Mississippi, where they’ve been using it for years.

“They’ve been doing this work about bringing small groups of people together to engage in the kinds of conversations that, at first, bring down the barriers that exist between people to open them to having the dialogue to begin with,” said John Dozier, chief diversity officer and director of community engagement. “And we thought that was such an appropriate space for us and a space that we as a university could absolutely help... maybe even outside of our university.”

Events close to home such as the shooting of nine people at Mother Emanuel Church and the controversial removal of the Confederate flag are what sparked the need for this forum.

They “opened wounds of race and exposed maybe some of the real challenges that come from the fact that we’re not...
Jury selection begins in Roof trial

The trial of Dylann Roof is progressing as the selection of a jury begins Monday, WIS reports. The eventual jury will be taken from hundreds of possible jurors at a Charleston courthouse. The trial itself is not expected to start until after Thanksgiving. Roof is accused of murdering nine parishioners of Charleston’s Emanuel AME Church in June of 2015.

— Compiled by Mary Ramsey, News Editor

Charlotte protests impact Panthers game

Sunday’s Carolina Panthers game saw increased security as protests continued over the shooting of an African-American man by police, WLTX reports. Area officials decreed the game an “extraordinary event,” allowing police to impose extra restrictions on attendees. Protesters gathered outside Bank of America Stadium before the game, and many echoed the protests of Colin Kaepernick by taking a knee as the National Anthem played inside the stadium. Panthers quarterback Cam Newton wore a shirt with a Martin Luther King Jr. quote during pre-game warmups.

— Compiled by Mary Ramsey, News Editor

College GameDay headed to Clemson

ESPN’s College GameDay will return to the Palmetto State for Clemson’s matchup against Louisville, The Post and Courier reports. Clemson, currently ranked No. 5, will face off against No. 3 Louisville at 8 p.m. on ABC. The Tigers are 2-0 all-time against the Cardinals, who joined the ACC just two seasons ago, and 3-1 all-time when hosting GameDay.

— Compiled by Mary Ramsey, News Editor
Monday, September 26, 2016

Candace Brewer, whose uncle, Charles Rosemond Sr. of Greer, was killed by police last year, also attended the teach-in. Brewer says that Black Lives Matter is important to her because she wants to make sure that what happened to Rosemond does not happen to other families. “I’m hoping that people learn how to interact with law enforcement, but not only them interacting with law enforcement,” Brewer said. “I’m hoping that law enforcement learns how to interact with us so that they can stop killing us.” Brewer said that since Rosemond’s death, she has been an active supporter and advocate of BLM, and has been “doing [her] own type of investigation” in an effort to find out the details of what happened the day he was killed. “I’m expecting a change to come,” Brewer said.

The teach-in had a primary focus on educating the people in attendance on the goals and action plans of the BLM movement, but on the Saturday following, the movement will take the form of protests in Columbia. Like the teach-in, though, the peaceful protests are in part a response to police killings of black people. “We are tired of this systematic killing of our brothers, sister, mothers, sons, partners,” a Facebook page for the event says. “[We] understand that grief and pain are dealt with differently by different people, but we are not condoning, advocating, allowing any violence, window smashing, etc.”

The protests and vigil will begin at the South Carolina Statehouse on Oct. 1 at 7 p.m. Organizers encourage anyone to attend, including performers and artists. The event organizers aim to “create a space for discussion, grief, gathering and healing.”

Barnes & Noble University of South Carolina
SHOPGAMECOCKS.COM
The Russell House, 1400 Greene Street, Columbia, SC 29208 • 803-777-4160
@UnSCBookstore • @UnSCBookstore

JOIN US FOR
GRAD FAIR
October 4 & 5 • 10AM - 5PM
Darla Moore Business School
Sonoco Pavilion
One-stop shopping for all of your graduation needs
Can't make it to Grad Fair?
Visit oakhalli.com/usc to place your order
Questions? 803.777.3982

Welcome to the Daily Gamecock Deal of the Week.

To redeem this week’s deal simply cut out the coupon or download our app, click on Deal of the Week and show at checkout.
RESCHEDULED

CAROLINA PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS AN EVENING WITH

Shawn Johnson

OLYMPIC GOLD MEDALIST
DANCING WITH THE STARS

FREE EVENT
to students, faculty & staff w/ valid carolinacard

RH BALLROOM @8PM
SEPTEMBER 28TH

Carolina Productions
University of South Carolina Student Life

For more information or assistance, visit cp.sc.edu or call (803) 777-3950. This event is subject to change. Paid for by Campus Activity Fees.
Audience ‘blown away’ by Carrie Underwood concert

Popular country music artist Carrie Underwood performed at the Colonial Life Arena on Sept. 24 as a part of her “Storyteller” tour in support of her sixth album.

Excited families clad in cowboy boots waited patiently outside the Colonial Life Arena on Sept. 24 in anticipation of country star Carrie Underwood. Underwood and her band certainly left their mark on Columbia, even though it was just another stop on her Storyteller Tour.

Outside the arena, the atmosphere was full of high spirits and dedicated country music fans. A bag check, security point and ticket scan separated the concertgoers from the arena. Country stars The Swon Brothers and Easton Corbin were the featured opening acts for the show and will be for the rest of the tour.

As a singer, Underwood does not epitomize the stereotypical country music sound. Rather, she builds upon typical conventions with her youthful sound and belting capabilities.

In contrast to Underwood’s “new country” sound, Easton Corbin’s songs displayed a more typical country voice. Corbin’s songs featured low notes and repetitive chants intermixed with lyrics about girls and having a good time — a theme that is very common in country music today.
Music is another easy way to break up your studies with a jam or an album on your record player can relieve the tension that your mind associates with studying. Depending on the type of music you listen to, it can encourage you by having a more upbeat rhythm in your thought process, zapping out the attention to your study material: Music can help boost your drive to get whatever you're working on done with the emotional effects it creates. So break up your studies with a jam session or, even better, combine the mood-enhancing powers of music and exercise by dancing along to your favorite song.

3. Take a nap

While this may seem like the most obvious way to break up your studies, it can actually be the most beneficial kind of break. Taking a nap activates the parasympathetic nervous system while leaving you feeling refreshed. Try to limit your naps to 20 minutes, which are sometimes called “power naps” because they can charge up your brain just enough to keep you going without making you feel groggy. 20 minutes, which are sometimes called “power naps” because they can charge up your brain just enough to keep you going without making you feel groggy.

4. Talk to a friend

If you’re like me, being by yourself can leave you feeling mentally and emotionally drained. A great way to pick yourself up is to have a conversation with someone. Call one of your friends or hang out with your roommates for a few minutes to catch up or get help with your studies. This will remind you that you still have a life! Play around with different study breaks to find out what makes you feel best and allows you to study more effectively afterward. Pay attention to your body and make sure that whatever you’re doing is conducive to healthy life and study habits.

MAGNIFICENT PAGES
movie lacked the development of the bond the group suddenly had by the end of the movie. During the formation of the seven outlaws, tensions were high as most did not know each other, causing confrontations. By the end of the film, they were great friends who cared deeply for each other, which is fine, except the film never shows how this came about. There are a few scenes of merry drinking but nothing really that meaningful that brings the group together.

I also left the theater feeling a bit disappointed at the lack of interaction between Washington and Pratt’s characters. There was a golden opportunity here in introducing the respected veteran to the admired new star, but I felt this wasn’t taken advantage of. As with relationship development, they were also a case of magically caring for each other by the end of the film without sharing any developing moments.

Overall, this was an entertaining movie and definitely worth a watch. It presented a unique Wild West story with compelling characters and a memorable climax. I gave this movie a B+ because each unique character brought comedy and emotion to the film, which made me care about the characters and enjoy the storyline.

UNDERWOOD PAGES

T-shirt-shooting DJ, the opening acts truly carried out their job of getting the crowd excited for the show. The intricate lighting dimmed as Underwood rose from below the stage, certainly asserting her dominance within the 19,000-person seating capacity. Attendees jumped and cheered in utter excitement as Underwood took the stage. She began with a powerful performance of “Renegade Runaway,” the first track on her newest album, Storyteller. Underwood immediately began with her familiar belting, perfectly establishing her pre-show.

The first line of her concert paid homage to the tracks that catalyzed her rise to fame, performing older classics such as “Last Name,” “Undo It,” “Cowboy Casanova” and, possibly the quintessential Carrie Underwood track, “Jesus, Take the Wheel.” Sentimental flourishes and tears fell as Carrie revisited her emotional connection to this tune. At the same time, fans connected to both Underwood’s classics and her newer hits.

First-year biochemistry and molecular biology student Kyle Fletcher, said she was “blown away” by the whole event. “There were fireworks,” she said. “She’s amazing live. It was the best concert I’ve been to.”

A costume change later, Underwood rose from below once more to belt “Blown Away,” a popular hit from her fourth studio album. Hydraulics rushed and lights flashed as ribbons blew from the stage, analogous to both the lyrics of the song and Underwood’s performance blowing away the crowd’s expectations.

Returning to the theme of storytelling, she transitioned to an incredibly genuine and powerful performance of her hit to her biggest idol, Dolly Parton. Underwood began her rendition of “L指導 defies the perfect country music career,” and then continued to sing Parton’s “I’ll Always Love You,” an emotionally charged ballad that Carrie began a cappella. If one super ballad wasn’t enough, Underwood immediately followed with the new song “What I Never Knew I Always Wanted,” a touching melody about the story of her newborn baby, along with her rise to fame, performing older classics such as “Last Name,” “Cowboy Casanova” and, possibly the quintessential Carrie Underwood track, “Jesus, Take the Wheel.” Sentimental flourishes and tears fell as Carrie revisited her emotional connection to this tune. At the same time, fans connected to both Underwood’s classics and her newer hits.

First-year biochemistry and molecular biology student Kyle Fletcher, said she was “blown away” by the whole event. “There were fireworks,” she said. “She’s amazing live. It was the best concert I’ve been to.”

A costume change later, Underwood rose from below once more to belt “Blown Away,” a popular hit from her fourth studio album. Hydraulics rushed and lights flashed as ribbons blew from the stage, analogous to both the lyrics of the song and Underwood’s performance blowing away the crowd’s expectations.

Returning to the theme of storytelling, she transitioned to an incredibly genuine and powerful performance of her hit to her biggest idol, Dolly Parton. Underwood began her rendition of “L

of college students get the flu vaccine

BUT

are susceptible to the flu

3. Take a nap

While this may seem like the most obvious way to break up your studies, it can actually be the most beneficial kind of break. Taking a nap activates the parasympathetic nervous system while leaving you feeling refreshed. Try to limit your naps to 20 minutes, which are sometimes called “power naps” because they can charge up your brain just enough to keep you going without making you feel groggy.

4. Talk to a friend

If you’re like me, being by yourself can leave you feeling mentally and emotionally drained. A great way to pick yourself up is to have a conversation with someone. Call one of your friends or hang out with your roommates for a few minutes to catch up or get help with your studies. This will remind you that you still have a life! Play around with different study breaks to find out what makes you feel best and allows you to study more effectively afterward. Pay attention to your body and make sure that whatever you’re doing is conducive to healthy life and study habits.

STRESS PAGES

Take a short walk around your neighborhood, run for 10 minutes or toss around a frisbee or football in your roommates. Getting some exercise by dancing along to your favorite songs.

and exercise by dancing along to your favorite song on the radio

Music is another easy way to break out of the study blues. Listening to your favorite song on the radio can relieve the tension that your mind associates with studying. Depending on the type of music you listen to, it can encourage you by having a more upbeat rhythm in your thought process, zapping out the attention to your study material: Music can help boost your drive to get whatever you’re working on done with the emotional effects it creates. So break up your studies with a jam session or, even better, combine the mood-enhancing powers of music and exercise by dancing along to your favorite song.

3. Take a nap

While this may seem like the most obvious way to break up your studies, it can actually be the most beneficial kind of break. Taking a nap activates the parasympathetic nervous system while leaving you feeling refreshed. Try to limit your naps to 15-20 minutes, which are sometimes called “power naps” because they can charge up your brain just enough to keep you going without making you feel groggy.

4. Talk to a friend

If you’re like me, being by yourself can leave you feeling mentally and emotionally drained. A great way to pick yourself up is to have a conversation with someone. Call one of your friends or hang out with your roommates for a few minutes to catch up or get help with your studies. This will remind you that you still have a life! Play around with different study breaks to find out what makes you feel best and allows you to study more effectively afterward. Pay attention to your body and make sure that whatever you’re doing is conducive to healthy life and study habits.
debates, when Marco Rubio that is brought up during the expectations by displaying insulting her appearance, if he manages to stay vaguely a sharp, accurate opponent. much as she does about being discerning, scale than Clinton, judged on a different, and less winner — he's always been it's practically on the floor for debate could be his chance to Clinton in recent weeks, the poll numbers to tie Hillary debate, the first of three, has the is so common at games that out of the several from requiring guest lists to fraternity tailgates. Though she was not that she was. The only person intoxicated, it was obvious the one she was at, and that is only pushing it behind is only widening the gap between the culture starts to influence the children at tailgates, who can't drive alcohol and can run 24 hours a day, seven days a week without having a license. It makes a bigger threat to American jobs than any other problem. We need to be careful of the uncharted waters of letting artificial intelligence into the uncharted if they can cut through the facts and defeat slapped-together messages and telling the truth to counter lies with cold, hard facts and defeat slapped-together logical points. She has a reputation for coldness and calculation, but those will not be negative traits if they can cut through the clutter and come across as genuine. When Trump is on his game, it could be a problem for Clinton, who has to deal with the only herself and his own mistakes. Trump, the freewheeling Trump who won the GOP primary. Although Clinton has the advantage of being a much more skilled and experienced debater than Trump, he could te...
Interested applicants, please Email eds@eastminsterpres.org. Columbia, is now accepting applications for part-time preschool assistants and substitutes. Morning and afternoon hours. Apply in-person with resume.

For solutions to today’s puzzle, go to dailygamecock.com or download our app!
Baseball has elected to take an evolving state of U.S. and regime, but more importantly oppression and despair that is just under 5,000 more fans in emphasizing individual stars. A sport that structurally de-heritage — Fernandez’s starts together by its Latin-American city whose fibers are woven Pitching in Miami — a ambassador for the game.

he had gone through; his Baseball was fun after all that was still maturing as an athlete. History of major league starting batters than Fernandez in the basis, only Rangers All-Star Yu limited to the easy part. He had just turned 24. He Fernandez shouldn’t be remembered for merely his pitching, though. He should be remembered as a great ambassador for the game. Pitchers are by nature usually the last people in a city whose fibers are woven together by its Latin-American heritage — Fernandez’s starts together by its Latin-American fibers, but more importantly heartbreak that we are not left with a kind of community. McCaskill continued her dominance in this season. Her 26 points of the nation in points.

McCaskill continued her dominance in this season. She recorded two assists, bringing her to 26 points through 11 games this year and maintaining her ranking as second in the nation in points. South Carolina improves to 10-0-1 on the year — their only blemish that started their season. South Carolina had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.

Fernandez had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.

had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.

had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.

had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.

had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.

had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.

had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.

had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.

had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.

had another outstanding game. She made two saves on her way to her fourth shutout of the season. While, the offense started off slow, the defense stayed consistently hot from start to finish. Kentucky did not record their first shot on goal until the 37th minute. Kentucky took a header just a minute later, but it was blocked by Krzeczko. Those attempts on net of the game.
Brandon McIwain and the Gamecocks were unable to consistently find holes in Kentucky’s defense.

Column:

Gamecocks fans unworthy of reputation

Allie Danather

The student section here at South Carolina is nothing to be proud of. Yes, you read that correctly.

Those that here at South Carolina pride in the fans of Carolina sports. Be it football, basketball or really any other sport taking place on campus, the stadium is almost always full of some great personalities. Newspapers sent to high schools' homes almost always feature a picture of a sporting event, which is not accompanied by any photos of student cheering. At the Gamecocks, coaches, players and administrators alike will be the first people to tell you that the University of South Carolina has the best fans in the world.

But as I sit through game after game and continually see the student sections empty after halftime, I can tell you one thing: the students here at South Carolina are not the best fans in the world — in fact, they aren’t even close.

For all South Carolina sports, students are more likely to go out of their way to go to games. They are often the first to arrive at events, cheering and establishing themselves as a fan before the official announcement that an event is taking place on campus, the stadium is almost always full of some great personalities. Newspapers sent to high schools' homes almost always feature a picture of a sporting event, which is not accompanied by any photos of student cheering. At the Gamecocks, coaches, players and administrators alike will be the first people to tell you that the University of South Carolina has the best fans in the world.

Column:

Women’s soccer shuts out Kentucky

Claudia Chakamian

The No. 8 South Carolina women’s soccer team continued their undefeated season Sunday afternoon as they took down Kentucky 3-0.

It took a while for the offense to heat up. The Gamecocks outshot Kentucky in the first half, although the game remained scoreless. Kentucky goalkeeper Evangeline Soucie made some great saves to keep zeroes on the scoreboard.

The first goal of the game came 11 minutes into the second half. Junior forward Savannah McCaskill completed a beautiful pass to senior Stephanie Groff to set up a scoring opportunity. The kick went off the post, but Groff was there and her own rebound to reach the back of the net. This was her third goal of the season.

South Carolina got on the board again when Kaleigh Kurtz sent a rocket into the net, unassisted, scoring her first goal of the year.

The Gamecocks were firing on all cylinders when McCaskill set up another opportunity for the Gamecocks, and Lindsey Lane took advantage of it to give the Gamecocks a 3-0 lead in the 67th minute.

Although it took a while for the offense to start connecting, South Carolina head coach Shelley Smith was not overly concerned. “We put ourselves in position to score in the first half, but that’s where you don’t get anxious or frustrated,

On his fourth and final defection attempt from Cuba, a 17-year-old Jose Fernandez plunged head first into treacherous waters to save an unknown woman who had been boating accident off Miami Beach. Two other bodies were recovered. In his moments of need, no one was there to save him.

A Coast Guard boat first sighted Fernandez when he finally arrived in the United States, getting to the major leagues and establishing himself as a general manager was an exasperatingly cakewalk. The right-hander was drafted by the Mariners in 2011 and bypassed two minor league seasons before being called up to the major league. In 2013. In his rookie campaign, he posted a 2.19 ERA and won the Cy Young Award.

He learned he had just saved the 15-year-old Jose Fernandez, known for his passion for the game paired with his off-the-field triumphs made him a great ambassador for the Major League Baseball. The young star passed away at 24.

Abe Danather