

Cameraman Authority File for Fox News (1919-1930)

v. 2.1

Last Modified: Wednesday, April 25, 2012

(created and maintained by Greg Wilsbacher, Curator, Newsfilm Collections)

Scope and Content: The Cameraman Authority File for Fox News (CAFFN) provides data regarding the source of 35mm motion picture film entered into the Fox News library from August 1919 to April 1930 when the Fox Film Company closed its silent newsreel library.

In most cases the information recorded in this file refers to individual or corporate creators of film records intended for consideration by the editorial staff at Fox News in New York City. However, the Fox News library became the repository for some non-theatrical film content produced by Fox Films. With certainty, the Fox News library received films from Fox Varieties (a documentary or film magazine periodical), Fox Educational and Fox Industrial pictures. Little is published about the circulation or content of these non-fiction enterprises at this time.

Organization: The CAFFN is organized into two alphabetical lists: by individual and by corporate body. When an individual can be affiliated with a specific organization other than Fox News both the individual and the company will be listed. Such cross listing allows for the possibility that cameramen might move from one employer to another.

For individuals, each entry identifies a “base” as the resident or work location (by city in most cases) when such information is available. In some cases the original records provide detailed postal addresses, but these are not included in CAFFN since such detail is not typical for most entries. When a cameraman works out of more than one city additional cities are listed in the notes. Some staff cameramen were very mobile and were based in multiple cities and in some cases multiple countries. Russell Muth, for example, was filming for Fox in New York City no later than 1920 but then began globe hopping. He filed stories from Argentina, Sweden, Yugoslavia, France, Brazil, Germany, England, Spain, Chile but was clearly never based in any of these countries permanently. In his case, Muth is listed as being based in New York (Muth would later become head of the Paris offices of Fox Movietone News). When a cameraman can be identified with a country outside the United States that information is placed in the notes field.

For corporate entities, CAFFN lists city, state and country when such information is available.

Limitations: The CAFFN is drawn primarily from information recorded by hand or with fading carbon typescript on paper that is often brittle, acidic, and fragmented. Moreover, the nature of writing or typing in haste to meet a delivery schedule made errors more, not less, likely. Typos, misspellings and other errors common to manuscript creation are expected. To these are added the problems common to manuscript transcription (eye skip, transposition, etc.). Because it is difficult to assess the spelling accuracy of surnames, this list should be treated accordingly. When records indicate variant spelling for what is certainly the same cameraman both are listed with the alternate in brackets. For example, CAFFF lists “von Hoffman [van Hoffman]” and “van Hoffman [von Hoffman]”. CAFFN will be updated as definitive evidence resolves spelling concerns.

Since the Fox News library contains material from other non-theatrical sources, it is important that users not presume each cameraman submitted newsreel stories. Further research regarding the relationship of Fox Varieties, Fox Educational Films, and Fox Industrial Films with Fox News is required before a definitive hand-list of Fox News submitters can be created. Still, users should feel confident that the majority of the names on the list have some affiliation with the newsreel’s production.

Similarly, the name listed on the dope sheet is presumed to be that of the camera operator. In some cases this name may be the manager of a company or field office. This may be the case, for example, with those entries from Abraham Carlos. Carlos managed the Paris and Rome exchanges for Fox Films. Although this doesn’t preclude the possibility that he actually operated the camera for the stories filed under his name, it is just as likely that these films were shot by someone hired for the day by Carlos.

Sources: The CAFFN draws primarily on the original field notes filed by cameraman. These records, called “dope sheets”, typically provide information about the location, date, and subject of the the submitted news film. In some cases the dope sheets in the Fox Movietone News Collection at the University of South Carolina were clearly created after the fact by Fox personnel in New York. In addition to the dope sheets, the CAFFN relies on information recorded on the card catalog records created by Fox News staff in the 1920s. These cards at times clarify the spelling of names when the dope sheets provided inconclusive information.

In addition to these archival records, information about individuals and corporate bodies in the CAFFN comes from published primary source materials of the period, trade publications in particular. Additional information comes from online indices such as the American Film Institute Catalog and the Internet Movie Database (IMDB) and Library of Congress authority records.

Further development: CAFFN users with additional information to contribute about individual or corporate names should contact Greg Wilsbacher, Curator, Newsfilm Collections, Moving Image Research Collections, University of South Carolina <gregw@mailbox.sc.edu>
