THE SOUTH CAROLINA LAW QUARTERLY

EDITORIAL SECTION

THE LAW SCHOOL

The little war that started over in Korea back in June didn't cause too much concern at first, but gradually it has shown its effect in almost every field of American life.

The University of South Carolina law school, with a large segment of its student body in the various reserve corps, began to feel the force of the war early in the conflict when one by one men were recalled. At the time of this writing, 14 men had gone from the law school into the armed services and others are under orders. At the close of the semester additional men, who have not had previous military service will become subject to the draft.

The most stunning report on the men who are already "in" was that of the death of Lieutenant Bill Goudelock, who was called up by the Marines after finishing his freshman year here last June, as the result of wounds received while leading a Marine patrol in Korea.

Since the beginning of the Korean conflict, the following men have been called to active duty: Robert C. Brown of Hickory Grove, air force; Robert N. Daniel, Jr. of Belton, army; Thomas A. Collings of Clemson, army; Bill L. Fant of Anderson, navy; H. C. Blanton of Green Sea, marines; Eugene L. Nettles of Lake City, army; Samuel P. Manning of Spartanburg, army; Charles L. McDade, Jr. of Union, air force; Hubert C. Garrett, Jr. of Woodruff; Rudolph B. Montjoy of Woodruff; Bernard D. Dusenbury of Florence, marines; Mortimer M. Weinberg of Sumter, army; and William H. Seals of Dillon, marines.

The January graduating class consisted of only eight men, the smallest in years. Twenty new students enrolled, making the total number of students for the spring semester 169, including four women. The new students were greeted officially at a Coca-Cola party in the library on February 8.

The new officers of the Law Federation who assumed office at the beginning of this semester are Paul Culbertson of Laurens, president; George James of Summerton, vice-president; and David Sloan of Fountain Inn, secretary-treasurer. A new cabinet, made up of the committee chairmen of the Federation was installed at the same time. It is composed of Charles Davis of Greenville, program; Charles Culbertson of Laurens, professional intergration; Arthur Rosenblum of Laurens, publications; H. P. Smith of Easley, building; Everette Brandon of Clover, library; Arthur Erwin of Sharon, social; and William E. Rone of Spartanburg, publicity.

A new required course has been placed in the school curriculum beginning with this semester. It is called Legal Writings and Research and is being taught jointly by Dean Samuel L. Prince, Miss Sarah Leverette, law school librarian, and Judge M. S. Whaley, and a member of the USC English department. The course will extend over three semesters and have one lecture hour a week.

Five members of the law faculty attended the annual convention of the Association of American Law Schools in Chicago during the Christmas holidays. They were Dean Prince and Professors James D. Sumner, G. S. King, Coleman Karesh, and Carlisle Roberts.

The school's two professional fraternities recently named new officers for the new semester. Phi Delta Phi elected Robert Schumpert, Magister; George James, Exchequer; Jerry Fedder, Clerk; and Benjamin Goldberg, Historian.

T. K. Summerford will be the Justice of Phi Alpha Delta during this term. The other officers are: John Broome, Vice-Justice; Ed Latimer, Clerk; Jim Sitgreaves, Marshall; Billy Gibson, Treasurer; Dalton Stokes, Party Chairman; and George Thomas and Jim Stevens, Reporters.

Six men, five juniors and a senior, have been elected to membership in the Wig and Robe, the highest scholastic honor that can come to a student while in the law school. They are: Jerry Fedder of Easley; Robert Galloway of Due West; H. P. Smith of Easley; Charles Bernstein of Charleston; Robert J. Jones of Spartanburg, all juniors, and Senior, Fay Bell of Myrtle Beach.
