Letter from the Co-Editors

Welcome to the 2020 SCLA Annual Conference edition of the South Carolina Libraries. This past year has been one filled with challenges, heartache, motivation, and successes. This issue highlights the achievements and hard work happening across South Carolina. We thank the authors and peer reviewers responsible for the articles included in this issue and hope that you find opportunities to expand your librarianship from their examples.

Looking ahead while considering the past, the editorial board wants to acknowledge our commitment to ensuring that all voices are lifted in our issues. We stand with the American Library Association's statements condemning racial injustices towards BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, People of Color) individuals as well as statements supporting the LGBTQIA+ community. All individuals working or aspiring to work within libraries should have the opportunity to reach the larger community. We are listening and hope that you will find South Carolina Libraries a friendly place to share your knowledge, skills, and experiences.
