Innovista plan breaks ground on Greene Street

James Stewart \(\text{PAGE3}\)

Reported by the Free Times last week, construction crews have broken ground on the corner of Greene and Lincoln streets.

The plan, which has origins dating back two generations of University presidents, was designed to develop improvements to various properties in the 1960s, which would immediately touch on providing a positive academic environment, a social and fun locale.

According to the official USC Master Plan documents, the Innovista Master Plan will introduce a mixed-use street design, incorporating traditional architecture and new greening spaces like the Horseshoe.

The ultimate goal, according to the document, is to create an "urban, mixed-use, live-work academic and research district near campus, where future students can not only live in a university environment, and also help to grow a large part of the local and state economies by spurring development."

According to reporting done by the Free Times, Richard C. Cantey, Transportation Director Bob Perry says that sidewalks and sidestreets would be an integral part of the neighborhood design.

"We're talking about lots of trees and fountains," Perry said. "And a company area, so the students will really be free to walk and ride their bicycles and really kind of put an emphasis on providing a positive social environment, and a positive academic environment, in a social and fun locale."

The primary source of information was the Horseshoe. Clearly, the play is a dramaticization of real life sequence of events. During the training, two alcoholics come together to find stability and socialize. After having immense success with staying sober, they decide to develop a program to help other hopeless alcoholics.

Bill W. is a stockbroker who finds light through honesty, recovery, and, of course, alcohol. However, after the stock market crashed in 1929, he loses everything and becomes a low-life drunk. Dr. Bob, a surgeon, husband and father, begins to realize that alcoholism is a disease.

He decides to develop a program to help people recover from alcoholism and other drug addictions. However, just 100 years ago, nothing of the sort existed. Doctors didn't even believe alcoholism was a disease.

So in 1931, a woman and a man as a recovery program Alcoholics Anonymous was birthed.

Clearly, the play is a dramatization of real life sequence of events. During the training, two alcoholics come together to find stability and socialize. After having immense success with staying sober, they decide to develop a program to help other hopeless alcoholics.

The building will be completed by 2016. The building will be completed by 2016. Clinton spoke at Benedict College during her campaign for the 2008 presidential election.

Clinton talks wage gap, gender equality during S.C. visit

Carolyn Culbertson \@CarolynC

Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton was a keynote speaker last Wednesday at the third annual Day in Blue, held at the Columbia Marriott Hotel.

The event was co-sponsored by the South Carolina Democratic Women’s Council and South Carolina House Democratic Women’s Caucus.

The former Secretary of State eulogized her predecessor before Rep. Gilda Cobb-Hunter could finish introducing her: "All of us here believe that a woman’s place is in the house and in the senate," Cobb-Hunter said as applause broke out.

Clinton, whose campaign is a champion for the everyday American, focused largely on guarding the obstacles women face in South Carolina and nationwide.

Launching the 25-minute speech with a pledge to make sure the Democratic Party "recruits and trains and fields more women for public office right here in South Carolina." Clinton immediately touched on a sore spot for South Carolina women, a state with only 11.5 percent female legislators and one female member of the state Senate.

As students taking summer classes in the Coliseum may have noticed, journalism faculty and staff are preparing to begin the next school year in their new facilities, located conveniently on the Horseshoe.

"So far everyone seems to be really excited about the new building, and I think we’re all really looking forward to moving to a well-lit, beautiful piece of campus," public relations professor Jeffery Ranta said. "We’re moving back to the Horseshoe, which will be amazing, and I also feel much closer to Russell House and all the activities that are going on campus.

The journalism school’s current home has been the Carolina Coliseum ever since the building was erected in 1968. Since the late 1990s however, increased university enrollment has prompted university administrators to consider the future of the journalism program and the resources it had at its disposal.

"I think part of it was the opportunity to upgrade every single thing," Ranta said. "We’re going to have a gorgeous, brand new TV studio, a gorgeous atrium that’s two stories tall. We’re melding a historical part of the Horseshoe with new technology."

The new location will bring the Journalism and Library and Information Science schools closer together, since they were merged in 2002.

"I think that the people have the same problems that everyone has, and that parking’s going to be a challenge," Ranta said. "We’re all going to have to become better at public transportation, but I think it’s a minor adjustment considering the payoff.

The new building will offer 15,000 square feet of space, compared to the currently-used 10,000 square feet in the Coliseum. Additionally, the move will place the school closer to its sister institution, the School of Library and Information Science, which will place the two schools the closest they’ve been to each other since merging in 2002. The building will be completed for the beginning of the 2015 academic year.

"I think that we’re still gonna have the same problems that everyone has, and that parking’s going to be a challenge," Ranta said. "We’re all going to have to become better at public transportation, but I think it’s a minor adjustment considering the payoff.

The new building will offer 15,000 square feet of space, compared to the currently-used 10,000 square feet in the Coliseum. Additionally, the move will place the school closer to its sister institution, the School of Library and Information Science, which will place the two schools the closest they’ve been to each other since merging in 2002. The building will be completed for the beginning of the 2015 academic year.

Trustus Theatre honors AA Recovery Program

Morgan Smith \@MorganMSmith

At USC, many students can count on the one person they know who drinks just a little too much. Maybe this person still functions during the day, but when the sun goes down and those Five Points bar lights come on, they become almost a totally different person.

Some of these students may dish the dirt on the for-hire responsibilities such as a job or a family, but have the same problem that many people end up as alcoholics.

"So far everyone seems to be really excited about the new building, and I think we’re all really looking forward to moving to a well-lit, beautiful piece of campus," public relations professor Jeffery Ranta said. "We’re moving back to the Horseshoe, which will be amazing, and I also feel much closer to Russell House and all the activities that are going on campus.

The journalism school’s current home has been the Carolina Coliseum ever since the building was erected in 1968. Since the late 1990s however, increased university enrollment has prompted university administrators to consider the future of the journalism program and the resources it had at its disposal.

"I think part of it was the opportunity to upgrade every single thing," Ranta said. "We’re going to have a gorgeous, brand new TV studio, a gorgeous atrium that’s two stories tall. We’re melding a historical part of the Horseshoe with new technology."

As students taking summer classes in the Coliseum may have noticed, journalism faculty and staff are preparing to begin the next school year in their new facilities, located conveniently on the Horseshoe.

"We’re all going to have to become better at public transportation, but I think it’s a minor adjustment considering the payoff.

The new building will offer 15,000 square feet of space, compared to the currently-used 10,000 square feet in the Coliseum. Additionally, the move will place the school closer to its sister institution, the School of Library and Information Science, which will place the two schools the closest they’ve been to each other since merging in 2002. The building will be completed for the beginning of the 2015 academic year.
Man charged after threatening pregnant woman with firearm

Zachary Compson, 22, of Sumter has been charged with criminal domestic violence of a high and aggravated nature by authorities after he allegedly threatened a woman and assaulted her, according to The State.

Compson, who was under house arrest at the time, contacted the female, who was six months pregnant at the time, to come over to his residence, according to Sumter Sheriff Department spokesman Braden Bunch.

During an altercation that took place over another woman, Compson allegedly threw the victim to the ground and aimed a handgun at her chest.

Paramedics cleared the woman, ensuring that both her and the unborn baby were not harmed. Compson is now being held at the Sumter-Lee Detention Center.

— James Stewart, News Editor

Five Points accident involving flipped SUV caused by DUI, authorities say

Early Thursday morning, a drunk driver flipped an SUV in a Five Points parking lot and has subsequently been charged with a DUI, according to WLTX.

Edward Eric Huffman, 25, crashed into another vehicle after turning into the parking lot of the Harden Street Cook Out, after which his SUV flipped over.

Huffman was hospitalized, but has since been released. He has been charged with driving under the influence.

— James Stewart, News Editor

Lindsey Graham announces 2016 presidential bid in S.C. hometown

South Carolina Senator Lindsey Graham announced his plans on Monday to run in the 2016 presidential election.

The third-term senator shared the announcement to a crowd in his hometown of Central, South Carolina, where he stated that America needs “peace through strength” in reference to many of the challenges the country finds itself facing.

The senator is directly opposed to the ways in which the Obama administration has handled foreign policy, especially when dealing with ISIS, Iran and Syria, saying “I want to be president to defeat the enemies trying to kill us, not just penalize them or criticize them or contain them, but defeat them.”

Graham pointed out that while strength was necessary to defeat the enemies of the U.S., ideas and ideologies would play a significant role as well.

“The terrorists are selling a glorious death,” Graham said. “We must sell a hopeful life. I’ve learned from my travels that a small schoolhouse in a remote region educating a young girl can do more damage to radical Islam than any weapon we possess.”

— James Stewart, News Editor
Clinton discussed the middle class and the pay gap in the way of equal pay. According to Clinton, this was held disproportionately by women, for the lowest paid jobs—which are held disproportionately by women, according to Clinton. This was preceded by a jab at the Republican Party, who Clinton blamed for standing in the way of equal pay.

Paralleling her campaign message, Clinton discussed the middle class and her idea for its future. “Top: ‘[Being middle class] should mean something again,’ she said. In 2008, Clinton suffered a humbling loss to Barack Obama in South Carolina, with the final count being 55 percent to 27 percent. Critics argue that Clinton must create deeper Obama-like resonance in the state a chance to not only be at the table in the economic, rather than keeping it at the边缘. Rather than keeping it at the "potentially combustible task of keeping it at the edge," wrote Politico staff writer Glenn Thrush in an article published on Politico.com.

In 2008, Clinton suffered a humbling loss to Barack Obama in South Carolina, with the final count being 55 percent to 27 percent. Critics argue that Clinton must create deeper Obama-like resonance in the state. That you have a little more so you can worry a little less.”

Additionally the University Master Plan states that “The University of South Carolina is embedded within the historic street grid and urban fabric of the City of Columbia. This location in convenient to the Greek Village, proposed new student housing, proposed academic facilities, Strom Thurmond Wellness & Fitness Center and parking for commuting students.”

Ultimately, the idea of the future neighborhood is enticing even to those students who won’t see the completed result. “I think that building a new neighborhood in that area would be great, if not for the fact that I think it would ruin the school in more with the Vista,” fourth-year computer science major Enyi Nwoka said. “Sometimes it feels like there’s a defining line between campus and the rest of the city, but I think that if they build something like this, it would really help make the area a lot more convenient and fun.”
Although we weren’t here to review the movies that came out in May, we still watched them and we hope you did too. Just in case you didn’t, here is a quick rundown of all the movies you may have missed. Some of them are still in theaters.

Ex Machina
Caleb, a young programmer, wins a competition to spend a week with the CEO of the company he works for. However, when he arrives, he discovers he will be participating in a breakthrough experiment, in which he must interact with an artificially intelligent robot named Ava. After a week of emotional toil, scientific jargon and subtle manipulation, the plot takes a twist in the A.I.’s favor.

Mad Max: Fury Road
The crew is back. All of Earth’s heroes team up; Iron Man, Captain America, Thor, The Incredible Hulk, Black Widow and Hawkeye battle to save the planet from Ultron, the destructive, wicked villain.

Polargeist
This highly anticipated remake of the 1982 movie Poltergeist came out for the general public. A troubled, yet gifted teen and a scientist go on a journey to discover the secrets of a place that doesn’t technically exist anymore, despite its existence in their memories. The film is filled with endless excitement and discovers on how to get back to the world they once experienced.

Did you see these movies?
If not, its not too late.

Mid-air adventures await in Columbia

Zip lining consists of a pulley suspended on a cable, mounted on an incline usually above forests, rivers or beautiful scenery.

Riverbanks Zoo’s Zip Line Canopy Tour includes seven zip lines that range from 200 to 1,000 feet. It features a trolley bridge and two cargo net climbs. Tours can last anywhere from 2 to 3 hours, depending on the size of the group.

Zip line tours are scheduled weekly and spaces must be reserved. A Zip Line Canopy Tour costs $80 for the general public and a River Zip is $55 for the general public.

Zip lining tours are scheduled weekly and spaces must be reserved. A Zip Line Canopy Tour costs $80 for the general public and a River Zip is $55 for the general public.

For more information, visit the Riverbanks Zoo website. So you are afraid of heights and would feel more comfortable closer to the ground. It’s okay, there’s an option for you too.

It may be time to visit HiWire Trampoline Park. It is a park of trampolines, obstacles courses and sponge pools. With over 12,000 feet of connected trampolines, over 60 trampolines, launching docks, angled wall trampolines and objects dangling from the ceiling to test your strength, you will never get bored.

However, we can’t promise you will last the entire time because this is a work out.

HiWire holds special events, such as Cliff HiWire, where “the lights go out and the lasers come on,” according to their website. They also have Theme Night Thursday’s from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., and dodgeball games are a popular feature at the park.

For price, reservations and location, visit their website.
and father by day, drunk by night, has been sneaking drinks and sedatives behind everyone’s backs for the past 30 years.

After seeking help through doctors, hospitals and the Oxford group evangelical movement, Bill and Bob meet in a manner that could only be brought on by fate. Bobs job search falls through and he finds himself needing a drink, but he instead seeks out help from another alcoholic. The two men form a close relationship through relapse, sorrow and successes, which helps them both stay sober. Ecstatic about their sobriety, they go out into the world to find other alcoholics who could benefit from their new program.

Laced with timely references and a jazz music, the play tells a true American success story. Alcoholics Anonymous has saved thousands of lives and a play honoring the program’s discovery is simply a reminder of the disease of alcoholism and the many resources we have today to help people in their path for recovery.

The play will be at the Side Door Theatre until June 13. For showtimes, prices and upcoming shows visit http://www.trustus.org/show.php?show_id=80.
As students, we rarely get anything more than rumors about what’s going on and, unfortunately, construction is about to begin. We are unsure of where to find answers to important questions such as who is building what new building on campus. Students and faculty are left wondering if the question was ever answered.

Moreover, the University does not seem to have a strategy for building. We have heard on multiple occasions that there are new projects on campus but we are unsure of what they are or how they will be funded. It seems like there is no plan for how the new buildings will be paid for.

Innovista project is the latest example of how the University is handling construction. The project is expected to cost $25 million and will be funded through private donations. However, the University has not provided any information on how the donations will be used or how they will be tracked.

The University should be more transparent about its construction plans. Students should have the opportunity to know what is being built and why.透明性太差，支持者们希望学校能够更透明地公布它的建设计划，包括每笔资金的使用情况。
Summer Jobs ATTN: STUDENTS: Are you looking for a summer job? Get paid valuable work experience and increase your income! Roger Beecham Staffing has local part-time jobs that you can keep to study.

Call the Roger Beecham office closest to you:

Columbus - 706-798-8800

Savannah - 912-943-5740

Laurens - 864-933-3022

Summer Workouts

Flat fee of $5 a hour for part-time and full-time. Some experience is preferred, but not required. Please apply:

Monday - Friday, 5-8 pm.

Please call Flat's.

PT Retail Optician Saver Chehalem position avail. in high-end optical boutique to manage, Burton-conscious individuals, to work well in the numbers, and handle compensation pay to Visioncare Optical. Learn job skills required worldwide; starting USC students for 20 years.

NEW HIRING FOR ALL POSITIONS

Columbus location

PLEASE APPLY WITHIN OR ONLINE AT:

www.panerabread.com

Email lisa.getman@panerabread.com

Great benefits.

Webster

May: 10 am - 9 pm

Mon-Sat

6 of 7 days

7:00 pm per 30 characters

App: 30 minutes per line

Center online at 11:29 pm and every 15 minutes after. "25 at center online at 11:29 pm and every 15 minutes after."

DEADLINE

20% of 3 issues

80% of 10 issues

50% off

Once

Daily Gamecock

Email dailygamecock@wisc.edu

with your best work.

For solutions to today’s puzzle, go to dailygamecock.com or download our app!

Sagittarius

June 22-July 22

Work and make money today and tomorrow. Keep your word and stick to your schedule. Repay a favor. Your work attracts attention. Watch for gifts and surprises, and provide some for your family. Do something nice. Make an amazing discovery.

Capricorn

December 22-January 19

You’re growing stronger today and tomorrow. Begin a confident phase. Make important connections. Accept more responsibilities, including a lucky break. Continue to build hidden wealth. Abundance is available. Be willing to learn new tricks.

Aquarius

January 20-February 18

Pisces

February 19-March 20

Today and tomorrow favor working as a communications team. Set up meetings and conferences. Come up with a brilliant solution to a persistent problem. Cleanse the aura. Someone else is pleased to drive. Others believe in you.

Deck of cards

The 1 of Swords represents the 1 of Hearts.

The 1 of Cups represents the 1 of Diamonds.

The 1 of Wands represents the 1 of Spades.

The 1 of Pentacles represents the 1 of Clubs.

The 2 of Swords represents the 2 of Hearts.

The 2 of Cups represents the 2 of Diamonds.

The 2 of Wands represents the 2 of Spades.

The 2 of Pentacles represents the 2 of Clubs.

The 3 of Swords represents the 3 of Hearts.

The 3 of Cups represents the 3 of Diamonds.

The 3 of Wands represents the 3 of Spades.

The 3 of Pentacles represents the 3 of Clubs.

The 4 of Swords represents the 4 of Hearts.

The 4 of Cups represents the 4 of Diamonds.

The 4 of Wands represents the 4 of Spades.

The 4 of Pentacles represents the 4 of Clubs.

The 5 of Swords represents the 5 of Hearts.

The 5 of Cups represents the 5 of Diamonds.

The 5 of Wands represents the 5 of Spades.

The 5 of Pentacles represents the 5 of Clubs.

The 6 of Swords represents the 6 of Hearts.

The 6 of Cups represents the 6 of Diamonds.

The 6 of Wands represents the 6 of Spades.

The 6 of Pentacles represents the 6 of Clubs.

The 7 of Swords represents the 7 of Hearts.

The 7 of Cups represents the 7 of Diamonds.

The 7 of Wands represents the 7 of Spades.

The 7 of Pentacles represents the 7 of Clubs.

The 8 of Swords represents the 8 of Hearts.

The 8 of Cups represents the 8 of Diamonds.

The 8 of Wands represents the 8 of Spades.

The 8 of Pentacles represents the 8 of Clubs.

The 9 of Swords represents the 9 of Hearts.

The 9 of Cups represents the 9 of Diamonds.

The 9 of Wands represents the 9 of Spades.

The 9 of Pentacles represents the 9 of Clubs.

The 10 of Swords represents the 10 of Hearts.

The 10 of Cups represents the 10 of Diamonds.

The 10 of Wands represents the 10 of Spades.

The 10 of Pentacles represents the 10 of Clubs.

The 11 of Swords represents the 11 of Hearts.

The 11 of Cups represents the 11 of Diamonds.

The 11 of Wands represents the 11 of Spades.

The 11 of Pentacles represents the 11 of Clubs.

The 12 of Swords represents the 12 of Hearts.

The 12 of Cups represents the 12 of Diamonds.

The 12 of Wands represents the 12 of Spades.

The 12 of Pentacles represents the 12 of Clubs.

Aries

March 21-April 19

Focus on your work for the next few days. Replicate your success. Don’t go over-ext. Increase your family’s comfort. Push for productivity and increased earnings. You have what you need. Learn from an engineering type.

Taurus

April 20-May 20

Fun is the name of the game today and tomorrow. Let someone else drive for a while so you can play. Consider a romantic intrigue. Imagine something wonderful. Find a new way to express your feelings.

Libra

September 23-October 22

The next two days are good for making changes. Home and family take priority. Invest in efficiency. Follow your own ideas. Find what you need stored away.

Scorpio

October 23-November 21

Focus up your studies today and tomorrow. You’re especially clever with Pander choices. Get creative. Accept advice from loved ones and especially children. A very beneficial development comes if you wait.

Sagittarius

November 22-December 21

Work and make money today and tomorrow. Your instincts guide you. Keep your word. Someone else is pleased to drive. Others believe in you.

Horoscopes

© 2015 The Daily Gamecock. Distributed by Tribune Media Services. All rights reserved.

Classifieds/Puzzles 7
Spring wrap up: Breaking it down