Traditions from the Earth - 1999

South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology--University of South Carolina

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarcommons.sc.edu/archmonth_poster

Part of the Anthropology Commons

Publication Info
Published in 1999.
© 1999 by University of South Carolina, South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology

This Poster is brought to you by the Archaeology and Anthropology, South Carolina Institute of at Scholar Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Archaeology Month Posters by an authorized administrator of Scholar Commons. For more information, please contact dillarda@mailbox.sc.edu.
TRADITIONS FROM THE EARTH

South Carolina Archaeology Month  September 2 - October 2, 1999
TRADITIONS FROM THE EARTH

Introduction

by Christopher Eyewitness and Lay, Inc.

South Carolina Archaeologi Museum, a collection of the prehistoric and historic archaeological finds. The year of great feasts is the 19th and 20th centuries. The museum has a large collection of artifacts, including tools, pottery, and other items. The museum is open to the public and is located in the center of the city. The museum is also a popular destination for tourists.

Nature America's policy at the South Carolina Arboretum in Columbia, South Carolina, is to promote the appreciation of nature through educational programs and events. The museum has a large collection of nature-related items, including plants, animals, and fossils. The museum is open to the public and is located in the center of the city. The museum is also a popular destination for tourists.

Colonial Pottery of Carolina

by Joseph J. New, South Carolina, Inc.

Colonial Pottery of Carolina is a collection of the prehistoric and historic pottery found in South Carolina. The museum has a large collection of pottery, including bowls, jars, and other items. The museum is open to the public and is located in the center of the city. The museum is also a popular destination for tourists.

Prehistoric Pottery

by John Gabe, Pottery Research Institute, Inc.

Prehistoric Pottery is a collection of the prehistoric pottery found in South Carolina. The museum has a large collection of pottery, including bowls, jars, and other items. The museum is open to the public and is located in the center of the city. The museum is also a popular destination for tourists.

Colonial Pottery of Carolina

by Joseph J. New, South Carolina, Inc.

Colonial Pottery of Carolina is a collection of the prehistoric and historic pottery found in South Carolina. The museum has a large collection of pottery, including bowls, jars, and other items. The museum is open to the public and is located in the center of the city. The museum is also a popular destination for tourists.

Catawba Pottery Tradition

by Justus Roca, Carolina Indian Cultural Heritage, Inc.

Catawba Pottery Tradition is a collection of the prehistoric and historic pottery found in South Carolina. The museum has a large collection of pottery, including bowls, jars, and other items. The museum is open to the public and is located in the center of the city. The museum is also a popular destination for tourists.

Spanish Pottery

by Christopher Eyewitness and Lay, Inc.

Spanish Pottery is a collection of the prehistoric and historic pottery found in South Carolina. The museum has a large collection of pottery, including bowls, jars, and other items. The museum is open to the public and is located in the center of the city. The museum is also a popular destination for tourists.