Oscars Preview

Turn to the Mix for a full preview of Sunday's 83rd Annual Academy Awards, including profiles on the acting front-runners.

For extended coverage of the Oscars all the way through Sunday night's show, visit us online at tdgawardscentral.blogspot.com and dailygamecock.com.

---

Weather

SU goes to town

The national champion Gamecocks are looking to hold their own against the Phoenix on Saturday.

See page 7

---

Sports

 boluuie

Keep USC healthy

Kate’s new webar is healthy and green. It’s much better than just driving cars.

See page 3

---

Sports Points

Softball to face Elon

USC looks to continue their dominating play against the Phoenix on Saturday.

See dailygamecock.com/news

---

Daily Gamecock

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 2011 VOL. 105, NO. 32 • SINCE 1908
Eating disorders brought to light

By Laura Rubel

The concept of beauty was evaluated at the conclusion of a Carolina Beautiful week during the annual eating disorders forum in Russell House Thursday afternoon.

Two students, an alumnus, two professors and psychologists and doctors helped educate students about eating disorders and begin the fight to help other students struggling with anorexia or bulimia.

The forum opened with an overview of the services offered in the Thomson Student Health Center's eating disorders. It was noted that USC has one of the most comprehensive eating disorder facilities in the state.

In order to aid students in these conflicts, the university has made full-time available assistants along with two psychologists and Dr. Monica Stone in Women's Care to tackle not only the food-related aspect but also physical and mental battles as well. All of the students who spoke asked that their last names not be published to protect their privacy.

All of the psychology and sociology student spoke for the third year in a row about her struggles with anorexia. She explained that her problems began in eighth grade but truly became serious after she entered high school and especially in college.

"At U.S.C., control, a perfectionist and a people pleaser," Allie said. "While those are endearing qualities separately, are a lethal mix together. I was just trying to be not human by expecting all of the above, and it became not about the facts but the feelings.

I had an inability to accept that but was going on in my life," Allie said.

"You've got to have a way to live to defend yourself," said State Law Enforcement Division chief Jerry Finlay, a former U.S.C. student and U.S.C. graduate.

She explained that her problems began after high school and especially in college.

"At U.S.C., control, a perfectionist and a people pleaser," Allie said. "While those are endearing qualities separately, are a lethal mix together. I was just trying to be not human by expecting all of the above, and it became not about the facts but the feelings.

I had an inability to accept that but was going on in my life," Allie said.

"You've got to have a way to live to defend yourself," said State Law Enforcement Division chief Jerry Finlay, a former U.S.C. student and U.S.C. graduate.

"It's not that we're anti-gun-freedom," said Jarrod Bruder, an enforcement officer known for advocating gun-rights education on gun safety and laws.

"If people would be safer if they do, the Constitution doesn't take that away," Bruder said.

"The bottom line is, we're not talking about a privilege granted by the state," said Pitts, R-Laurinburg, a retired law enforcement officer known for advocating gun-rights legislation. "Either you believe in the Constitution or you don't.

Nationally, only three states allow residents to carry a concealed weapon without a permit, according to the National Conference of State Legislatures and the National Rifle Association.

"We support that," Bruder said,óst the recent South Carolina Amendment and we want people to be safe.

The forum was largely attended by students who are interested in the topic of gun rights and gun laws.

Moore, executive director of the South Carolina Sheriffs' Association, said the University of South Carolina is overlooked in the discussion of gun rights and gun laws.

"We understand Second Amendment rights, especially in South Carolina," Moore said. "We do understand that."
Computer vision

The Daily Gamecock

EDITORIAL BOARD
JOSH DAWSEY
Editor-in-Chief
CASSIE STANTON
Copy Desk Chief
JANICE KRAMER
Managing Editor
ALICE CHANG
Managing Editor
KRISTYN SANITO
Mix Editor
ALIGHT SEYET
Assistant Viewpoints Editor
EMELIA LUCAS
Assistant Design Directors
KELLY JESSUP
Assistant Photo Editors
CASSIE STANTON
Copy Desk Chief
GUEST COLUMN
Massacres, genocide can be stopped by awareness, should not be ignored

Are you interested in working for The Daily Gamecock?
Email us at gamecockjobs@sc.edu

The Daily Gamecock © 2022. All rights reserved. Ownership, publication and distribution of The Daily Gamecock is published by Student Publications, Inc., a student-owned corporation. THE DAILY GAMECOCK, the daily newspaper of the University of South Carolina in Columbia, is published daily Monday through Friday except on holidays. The Daily Gamecock is published by Student Publications, Inc., a 501(c)(3) Nonprofit Corporation, and is the official student voice of the University of South Carolina. Student Publications, Inc., is the legal owner of The Daily Gamecock and must conform to the legal standards of USC Student Media. The Daily Gamecock reserves the right to withdraw and condense submissions for length and clarity, or not publish at all. The Daily Gamecock is a 2021-2022 Walter Cronkite Excellence in Journalism Finalist. Any information appearing on the front page of The Daily Gamecock and on the front page of dailygamecock.com is in the public domain and may be reproduced or distributed without written permission.

The Daily Gamecock © 2022. All rights reserved. Ownership, publication and distribution of The Daily Gamecock is published by Student Publications, Inc., a student-owned corporation. THE DAILY GAMECOCK, the daily newspaper of the University of South Carolina in Columbia, is published daily Monday through Friday except on holidays. The Daily Gamecock is published by Student Publications, Inc., a 501(c)(3) Nonprofit Corporation, and is the official student voice of the University of South Carolina. Student Publications, Inc., is the legal owner of The Daily Gamecock and must conform to the legal standards of USC Student Media. The Daily Gamecock reserves the right to withdraw and condense submissions for length and clarity, or not publish at all. The Daily Gamecock is a 2021-2022 Walter Cronkite Excellence in Journalism Finalist. Any information appearing on the front page of The Daily Gamecock and on the front page of dailygamecock.com is in the public domain and may be reproduced or distributed without written permission.

The Daily Gamecock © 2022. All rights reserved. Ownership, publication and distribution of The Daily Gamecock is published by Student Publications, Inc., a student-owned corporation. THE DAILY GAMECOCK, the daily newspaper of the University of South Carolina in Columbia, is published daily Monday through Friday except on holidays. The Daily Gamecock is published by Student Publications, Inc., a 501(c)(3) Nonprofit Corporation, and is the official student voice of the University of South Carolina. Student Publications, Inc., is the legal owner of The Daily Gamecock and must conform to the legal standards of USC Student Media. The Daily Gamecock reserves the right to withdraw and condense submissions for length and clarity, or not publish at all. The Daily Gamecock is a 2021-2022 Walter Cronkite Excellence in Journalism Finalist. Any information appearing on the front page of The Daily Gamecock and on the front page of dailygamecock.com is in the public domain and may be reproduced or distributed without written permission.

The Daily Gamecock © 2022. All rights reserved. Ownership, publication and distribution of The Daily Gamecock is published by Student Publications, Inc., a student-owned corporation. THE DAILY GAMECOCK, the daily newspaper of the University of South Carolina in Columbia, is published daily Monday through Friday except on holidays. The Daily Gamecock is published by Student Publications, Inc., a 501(c)(3) Nonprofit Corporation, and is the official student voice of the University of South Carolina. Student Publications, Inc., is the legal owner of The Daily Gamecock and must conform to the legal standards of USC Student Media. The Daily Gamecock reserves the right to withdraw and condense submissions for length and clarity, or not publish at all. The Daily Gamecock is a 2021-2022 Walter Cronkite Excellence in Journalism Finalist. Any information appearing on the front page of The Daily Gamecock and on the front page of dailygamecock.com is in the public domain and may be reproduced or distributed without written permission.
"Social Network," 'King's Speech' battle for Oscar top prizes

Jenny Gilmour
JGILMORE@DAILYGAMECOCK.COM

Midyear through "The Social Network," Sean Parker (Justin Timberlake) spread his arms and exclaimed to Mark Zuckerberg (Jesse Eisenberg),

"This is our time."

The scathing drama about the rise of social networking website Facebook is, indeed, about "our time." In a story of several loosely genius forges for control over a bold concept that now defines how much of us interact with and experience our friends, our family and our world, screenwriter Aaron Sorkin and director David Fincher make it a film with ambivalence and complex cynicism that sticks a cold knife into a central nerve of contemporary culture.

And for the longest time, it looked like it was "their time" to be honored. "The Social Network" shot out of the mess of quivering features. In a film featuring — her face gradually crumbles to a childlike form, she calls her mother to tell her she's won the top proportions. And while her dancing is certainly prolix, she's steeping a sense of royalty than it is about reinventing the i

The performance:

As King George VI, Firth's performance is less about sharing a sense of royalty than it is about finding the needs of her boxer sons so long as she can get a profit off them, Alice Ward

realistically captures being a monarch, with being an "actor," and Firth stumps his performance with moments that carefully investigate that notion.

Who could upset?: James Franco, "127 Hours"

The film: "The Fighter"

The performance:

When he first shows up on screen, Christian Bale is nearly unrecognizable. Playing a washed-up prizefighter, his wiry frame and unrecognizable. Playing a crack-addicted, shows up on screen, Christian Bale is nearly

"I've only ever been interested in arguments were everyone were convinced they're right."

― DAVID FINCHER

Best Supporting Actress
Melissa Leo
Two nominations, zero wins

The film: "The Fighter"

The performance: Melissa Leo's emotionally manipulative decoder ring is a kind of performance that usually occurs in a parade or cavalcade. While she enters the film a convincing schemer, one who refuses to recognize the needs of her boxer sons so long as she can get a profit off them, Alice Ward

realistically captures being a monarch, with being an "actor," and Firth stumps his performance with moments that carefully investigate that notion.

Who could upset?: Hailee Steinfeld, "True Grit"

The film: The Social Network

The performance of 2010. When the dust settled at the end of the year, it was

"The Social Network" for Best Picture prizes from the Screen Actors Guild awards and Golden Globes, it is far from clear how

the battle for Oscars' top prizes

And for the longest time, it looked like it was "their time" to be honored. "The Social Network" shot out of the mess of quivering features. In a film featuring

— her face gradually crumbles to a childlike form, she calls her mother to tell her she's won the top proportions. And while her dancing is certainly prolix, she's steeping a sense of royalty than it is about

"This is our time.

The performance:

As King George VI, Firth's performance is less about sharing a sense of royalty than it is about finding the needs of her boxer sons so long as she can get a profit off them, Alice Ward

realistically captures being a monarch, with being an "actor," and Firth stumps his performance with moments that carefully investigate that notion.

Who could upset?: James Franco, "127 Hours"

The film: "The Fighter"

The performance: Melissa Leo's emotionally manipulative decoder ring is a kind of performance that usually occurs in a parade or cavalcade. While she enters the film a convincing schemer, one who refuses to recognize the needs of her boxer sons so long as she can get a profit off them, Alice Ward

realistically captures being a monarch, with being an "actor," and Firth stumps his performance with moments that carefully investigate that notion.

Who could upset?: Hailee Steinfeld, "True Grit"

The film: The Social Network

The performance of 2010. When the dust settled at the end of the year, it was

"The Social Network" for Best Picture prizes from the Screen Actors Guild awards and Golden Globes, it is far from clear how

the battle for Oscars' top prizes

And for the longest time, it looked like it was "their time" to be honored. "The Social Network" shot out of the mess of quivering features. In a film featuring

— her face gradually crumbles to a childlike form, she calls her mother to tell her she's won the top proportions. And while her dancing is certainly prolix, she's steeping a sense of royalty than it is about

"This is our time.

The performance:

As King George VI, Firth's performance is less about sharing a sense of royalty than it is about finding the needs of her boxer sons so long as she can get a profit off them, Alice Ward

realistically captures being a monarch, with being an "actor," and Firth stumps his performance with moments that carefully investigate that notion.

Who could upset?: James Franco, "127 Hours"

The film: "The Fighter"

The performance: Melissa Leo's emotionally manipulative decoder ring is a kind of performance that usually occurs in a parade or cavalcade. While she enters the film a convincing schemer, one who refuses to recognize the needs of her boxer sons so long as she can get a profit off them, Alice Ward

realistically captures being a monarch, with being an "actor," and Firth stumps his performance with moments that carefully investigate that notion.

Who could upset?: Hailee Steinfeld, "True Grit"

The film: The Social Network

The performance of 2010. When the dust settled at the end of the year, it was

"The Social Network" for Best Picture prizes from the Screen Actors Guild awards and Golden Globes, it is far from clear how

the battle for Oscars' top prizes

And for the longest time, it looked like it was "their time" to be honored. "The Social Network" shot out of the mess of quivering features. In a film featuring

— her face gradually crumbles to a childlike form, she calls her mother to tell her she's won the top proportions. And while her dancing is certainly prolix, she's steeping a sense of royalty than it is about

"This is our time.

The performance:

As King George VI, Firth's performance is less about sharing a sense of royalty than it is about finding the needs of her boxer sons so long as she can get a profit off them, Alice Ward

realistically captures being a monarch, with being an "actor," and Firth stumps his performance with moments that carefully investigate that notion.

Who could upset?: James Franco, "127 Hours"

The film: "The Fighter"

The performance: Melissa Leo's emotionally manipulative decoder ring is a kind of performance that usually occurs in a parade or cavalcade. While she enters the film a convincing schemer, one who refuses to recognize the needs of her boxer sons so long as she can get a profit off them, Alice Ward

realistically captures being a monarch, with being an "actor," and Firth stumps his performance with moments that carefully investigate that notion.

Who could upset?: Hailee Steinfeld, "True Grit"
Stars to don top designs on Oscars’ red carpet

Co-host Anne Hathaway expected to display multiple garments

While the Oscars is an important event for the film industry, there is another industry that values the awards show as well: the fashion industry. For almost two hours, the Carpet will be underfoot and the Paparazzi will be in tow in the most prestigious show as the celebrities will make their way to the famous “Oscars” scene.

While final choices are kept top secret, there are some patterns available to the legions of fashion designers and industry professionals who look at the celebrity appearances to see more than just the red carpet fashion. Here are a few choices and looks that can be expected for this year.

The Palace

The Social Network

The Social Network has been the most likely film to win Best Picture at the Oscars this year. However, it is far from a lock to be the most likely film to win Best Picture, as the Academy has a reputation for being unpredictable. The Social Network has been a controversial film, but it has also been a commercial success, making it a likely contender for the top prize.

The King’s Speech

The King’s Speech has been seen as a dark horse in the Best Picture race, but it has gained a lot of momentum in recent weeks. The film has been praised for its performances and its ability to make poignant statements about the monarchy in England.

The Social Network

The Social Network has been one of the most anticipated films of the year. It has been praised for its acting, directing, and writing, and it is likely to be a serious contender for Best Picture. The film has also been praised for its ability to make the audience feel as if they are part of the story.

The Hurt Locker

The Hurt Locker is another film that is expected to be a strong contender for Best Picture. It has been praised for its direction and its ability to make a compelling argument about the war in Iraq. The film has also been praised for its ability to make the audience feel as if they are part of the story.

Avatar

Avatar has been one of the biggest box office hits of the year, but it is unlikely to win Best Picture. The film has been praised for its special effects, but it has not been well-received critically.

The Social Network

The Social Network is one of the most anticipated films of the year. It has been praised for its acting, directing, and writing, and it is likely to be a serious contender for Best Picture. The film has also been praised for its ability to make the audience feel as if they are part of the story.

The King’s Speech

The King’s Speech has been seen as a dark horse in the Best Picture race, but it has gained a lot of momentum in recent weeks. The film has been praised for its performances and its ability to make poignant statements about the monarchy in England.
Aries

Your natural talent shines today. You feel very connected spiritually and yearn for learning and new experiences. Enjoy the quest for discovery.

Taurus

Today is your lucky day. Take advantage of the opportunities in your career today. Your words are very powerful, and you can be very influential.

Gemin

Find partnership in areas where you thought it impossible before. You can adhere to your principles and wear them with pride. Let it shine.

Cancer

Go forward in hyper-speed. You may have to fly through a meteoritic shower, but it’s nothing you can’t handle. This is a good day for paperwork.

Leo

Share love, and invent happiness. Don’t be afraid to speak in public. They want to hear what you have to say. Say it from the heart.

Virgo

Clean up your desk, and get it ready for a special writing project. Blog entry, a love letter, a short story. It’s your choice. You’ve got the words.

Libra

Have you considered public speaking? It’s not as scary as it seems. Today’s a perfect day to go public. Express yourself from the heart.

Scorpio

Expressing yourself is powerful. Invent happiness. Don’t be afraid to speak in public. They want to hear what you have to say. Say it from the heart.

Sagittarius

Everything lines up correctly today. You’re talented, and you have everything you need for your communication project. Go for your heart’s desire.

Capricorn

Keep trying until you get it right. At the end you end up with more (whether you like it or not). It’s OK to want to be done. Don’t think too much.

Aquarius

Whoever owes nothing. Don’t spend on a whim. Be patient with your friends, and surround yourself with special people who appreciate you.

Pisces

Take some time to imagine your future. What path will your career take? Where will you travel? Who will come along? Invent a delightful scenario.

Crossword

Thursdays by Wayne Robert Williams

Coff iced Coffee Tuesday BPM Shandon House 1804 Greene St. Shandon College Ministry

ACROSS

1 Grow many knots are tied
6 Tahari ___ blakke side
10 Elmer’s product
14 Butterbeer’s rail
15 In ___ stack
16 Bear with too-hot porridge
17 Twisty-horned porridge
20 Comfortable situation
23 Anonymous Jane
25 Singer Neil
27 Discover as an anc.
30 Shoebox in a box
33 “Much... About Nothing”
34 Bottrof’s Thirteenth
35 Lil’ Abner’s creator Al
36 “Out with it!”
37 Lima’s country
42 Cake maker
43 “Born Free” lioness
44 “Romes and Juliet”
45 “Much... About Nothing”
46 Cyberpunk
47 “Free Willy”
49 “In the Name of Love”
51 Who do mirrors do
52 Filmdom’s Flynn
53 Moscow money
54 Moves out
57 Spanish

DOWN

1 “Your natural talent shines today. You feel very connected spiritually and yearn for learning and new experiences. Enjoy the quest for discovery.”
2 “Today is your lucky day. Take advantage of the opportunities in your career today. Your words are very powerful, and you can be very influential.”
3 “Find partnership in areas where you thought it impossible before. You can adhere to your principles and wear them with pride. Let it shine.”
4 “Go forward in hyper-speed. You may have to fly through a meteoritic shower, but it’s nothing you can’t handle. This is a good day for paperwork.”
5 “Share love, and invent happiness. Don’t be afraid to speak in public. They want to hear what you have to say. Say it from the heart.”
6 “Clean up your desk, and get it ready for a special writing project. Blog entry, a love letter, a short story. It’s your choice. You’ve got the words.”
7 “Have you considered public speaking? It’s not as scary as it seems. Today’s a perfect day to go public. Express yourself from the heart.”
8 “Expressing yourself is powerful. Invent happiness. Don’t be afraid to speak in public. They want to hear what you have to say. Say it from the heart.”
9 “Everything lines up correctly today. You’re talented, and you have everything you need for your communication project. Go for your heart’s desire.”
10 “Keep trying until you get it right. At the end you end up with more (whether you like it or not). It’s OK to want to be done. Don’t think too much.”
11 “Whoever owes nothing. Don’t spend on a whim. Be patient with your friends, and surround yourself with special people who appreciate you.”
12 “Take some time to imagine your future. What path will your career take? Where will you travel? Who will come along? Invent a delightful scenario.”

Solution from 02/24/11

Hey Students!

37x1106

Sharing love, and invent happiness. Don’t be afraid to speak in public. They want to hear what you have to say. Say it from the heart.

47x323

Every time you act like it. They don’t think like you do, and you can’t expect them to act like it.

28x182

Your natural talent shines today. You feel very connected spiritually and yearn for learning and new experiences. Enjoy the quest for discovery.

05x1129

Today is your lucky day. Take advantage of the opportunities in your career today. Your words are very powerful, and you can be very influential.

37x1067

Find partnership in areas where you thought it impossible before. You can adhere to your principles and wear them with pride. Let it shine.

28x907

Go forward in hyper-speed. You may have to fly through a meteoritic shower, but it’s nothing you can’t handle. This is a good day for paperwork.
Jackie Bradley Jr. had an great weekend at the plate for South Carolina in last weekend's season-opening series against Santa Clara. USC will look to keep the bats going against SIU.

"It's a resilient team," coach Boo Ferris said. "We had a good weekend in the opening series, and that's not easy to do when you play against a defending National Champion that didn't make any mistakes. They were not power pitchers, but they moved the ball around and threw some two- and three-seamers, and I thought they were very effective. It was hard to win three games."

"What is to come for USC, the future looks effective. It was hard to win three games."

"I think we had a good weekend in the opening series," South Carolina coach Ray Tanner said. "We played a team in Santa Clara that didn't make any mistakes. They didn't make an error on the weekend, they executed the bunt game and their pitchers were not power pitchers, but they moved the ball around and threw some two- and three-seamers, and I thought they were very effective. It was hard to win three games."

"This weekend, the Gamecocks continue their nonconference schedule as they host Southern Illinois. The two teams haven't met since 2009.

"It's that we emphasize every game and that in every game there's a sense of urgency," Tanner said. "I think our guys understand that. It's a long season — it's a marathon — but you don't want to look back and go, 'would've, could've, should've.' We'll get to make sure that we're ready to play." The Salukis won two out of three games this weekend at the Louisiana Tech Classic, where they defeated Grambling State and Nicholls State and lost to Louisiana Tech. They also dropped a game to Tennessee-Martin on Tuesday.

While USC may be in the unique place of having to defend its title, SIU went up against a defending National Champion once before in 1995, when they split the series against Wichita State after the Shockers had won the College World Series in 1995. One of the strong points for USC after its opener was its pitching, particularly in the case of Adam Westmoreland. He pitched 5.2 scoreless innings with five strikeouts and just one walk.

"Western Illinois continues to get very comfortable, and I think he continues to improve," Tanner said. "Nohel had great velocity last weekend, but he continues to get better with some more experience. His velocity is going up as well, and that's good to see. The idea is going to be to get five innings for me right now that is that he's healthy and he's comfortable." Against the Salukis, Michael Roth will get the start tomorrow, Monday, on the first day of the opening weekend. While the Gamecocks will get two innings with a run and a career-high of six strikeouts, Roth pitched a career-long of six innings, not allowing an earned run and tallying four strikeouts with two walks.

The Gamecocks also look to see continued offensive production, as USC has hit home runs in pitching in the past. The team did not have any pitcher last weekend over five innings last season. In three of the four games this season, the starter has gone at least six innings for the Salukis. Carmen Maldonado, a junior right-handed pitcher, will get the start for USC tomorrow. The Gamecocks are coming into our place, and he would like nothing more than to have his best game ever and beat us in the opening game of the last in-state last spring. She rose to the occasion with a quick 6-4, 6-1 win over the Eagles’ Sofia Brusek. She also teamed with Madeleine Szarzynska-Ronan for a dominating 8-2 victory in No. 2 doubles.

"I think she's feeling good," Elkins said. "I don't think she played like she wanted to or like she feels she can. That's why we're playing her out here every match. It's going to be her trial to this team. It's important that she get as much match-play as she can.

USC’s team in No. 1 doubles, Dominika Kanakova and Dijana Anic, also breezed to a victory by a final score of 8-1. The pair is ranked No. 3 in the nation and improves its record on the year to 7-2. Clemson’s most recent match was a tough loss to No. 9 Michigan. But the Tigers’ record on the year is 9-8, and they beat the No. 18 and No. 37 singles players in the country.

We're a little hurried, but we're not really changing our routine," Major said. "We don't have as many people that we have to prepare for this weekend, so we're looking at working with them more one-on-one rather than in a group."

Comments on this story?
Visit dailygamecock.com/ports
HOUSING
1 & 2 BR APTS. USC AREA. rajaluri@aeliusa.com www.uscarearentals.com. 803.318.0800.

EMPLOYMENT
BARTENDING $250/day No exp nec. Training available. 800-965-6520 x253

Grenadines Partnership FundCharitable org working to improve water quality, sanitation, recycling and the quality of life in the Caribbean seeks part-time administrative assistant. 15-20 hrs/wk w/ flex schedule.
Please email info@grenadinespartnership.org or call 803-765-1234.

Spanish tutor available for exam prep. 926.3126

TRAVEL
BAHAMAS SPRING BREAK $189.00 5-DAYS or $239 7-DAYS. All prices include: Round-trip luxury cruise with food. Accommodations on the island at your choice of thirteen resorts. Appalachia Travel. www.BahamaSun.com 800-867-5018

SERVICES
Math Tutor: The Expert 738.8956
$40 to file taxes call 730-4161

The “It’s Only Another Beer” Black and Tan
8 oz. pilsner lager
8 oz. stout lager
1 frosty mug
1 icy road
1 pick-up truck
1 10-hour day
1 tired worker
A few rounds with the guys
Mix ingredients.
Add 1 totalled vehicle.
Never underestimate ‘just a few.’ Buzzed driving is drunk driving.