This issue of the NOTEBOOK completes five full years of publication. It very nearly coincides with the first five years of the active work of the Institute of Archeology and Anthropology at the University of South Carolina. We hope that these pages of reporting have reflected most of the major and minor efforts of the Institute during these initial five years.

We have found that using the NOTEBOOK has become increasingly difficult with the increased diversity of material that it contains. It is just plain hard to find things in it. To correct this we have used this issue to publish an index to the NOTEBOOK.

This Index is organized by Subject Index, Title Index, and Author Index. Each volume contains its own Table of Contents. We hope that this will make finding things a bit easier.

The compiler of this Index issue has been Miss Susan Jackson of the Institute of Archeology and Anthropology staff. In recent months Susan has been helping with the editorial tasks of getting the NOTEBOOK out and has been doing a commendable job. Beginning with Volume VI Susan will become Assistant Editor for the NOTEBOOK.

The backlog of manuscripts for future issues of the NOTEBOOK is approximately equal to the space that we have available. We do, however, continue to solicit good manuscripts from all of you and hope that you will be providing your best research data for this purpose. Manuscripts should be no more than thirty double-spaced pages including illustrations. Please send them to:
