It has been an honor for me to have served as your president this year. 1980 has been an exciting year for SCLA. Our many accomplishments are reflected in the annual reports of the sections, round tables, and officers.

During the year, I have become increasingly conscious of two things. One is the diversity of the South Carolina library community--we are a group of people working in multi-type libraries performing a variety of jobs. The other is our similarity of purpose--we are all striving to provide quality library and information service to our user groups. The South Carolina Library Association is an effective outlet for our profession. It not only provides the opportunity for people to come together and share experiences; but more importantly, it offers the means to present a unified front in the promotion of libraries to the people of South Carolina.

During the next decade, the South Carolina library community will face major challenges and opportunities. With your support, I believe SCLA will make significant contributions to the growth and development of libraries in our state. I hope you will offer President-elect Bill Summers the same support and cooperation which you have shown me.

RICHARD DeGENNARO ADDRESSES THE FIRST GENERAL SESSION

SCLA IS ALIVE & WELL & MEETING IN COLUMBIA!

Meetings are never well remembered in detail, even by those who take copious notes (and have others take notes for them), shoot lots of pictures, and afterwards talk to People Who Were There. Individual incidents blend together to create an overall impression, and like paintings meetings are perhaps best seen from a distance. (Given the date of this issue, we certainly have distance on our side.)

The impression left by this year's SCLA convention is one of vitality. If meetings were few and far between; if membership was on the wane; if attendance was sparse; then, SCLA would have cause for concern. But such was not the case. Scheduling was tight, and for one gathering additional chairs had to be called for twice. The membership is 1,029 and registration at Columbia was over four hundred. Food and drink were plentiful and good, the conversation lively, and the pleasure of old friend-ships renewed and new acquaintances established helped draw together, for a few days, a profession as diverse and varied as the state of South Carolina itself. All was not sweetness and light: there were some less than happy faces on a few occasions, and some questions have been raised that will need answers. But such are the signs of a vital and viable organization, and such are the things that make participation in a professional organization worthwhile.

The complete minutes of the convention will appear in the South Carolina Librarian. Herewith, some of the highlights as seen by the editor and some very cooperative and helpful contributors.

Richard DeGennaro, speaking at the convention's first general session, sounded a theme which was heard repeatedly during the 3-day meeting: "You ain't seen nothin' yet" in challenge and change to the traditional way of doing library business. Private entrepreneurs are now providing the greatest challenge to libraries, but at the same time, libraries are learning from the challengers. DeGennaro cited two examples of the current trends: (1) private information brokers are now accounting for some 10% of interlibrary loan activities, and are growing at the rate of 15% per annum. (Unfortunately, he said, they seem to be skimming off the easy work and leaving the harder work to the traditional library.) (2) Past successes (such as OCLC) have been based on the entrepreneurial efforts of private sector activities, while government efforts at centralization (such as the National Periodicals Center) have failed. The networks, of course, have had and will continue to have a major effect on libraries, making net ILL lenders of some smaller libraries who, just a few years ago, were net borrowers. DeGennaro said that now that the shoe is on the other foot it pinches, and those smaller libraries have had to ration their ILL resources by placing a price on them. The nets, he said, must be seen as means, not ends in themselves, and the net will never be able to replace local resources.
UNCC's Joseph Boykin continued discussion of the networks in South Carolina at the College & University section's meeting. Boykin summarized the benefits of the networks as reduction of costs, improvement of effectiveness. A panel of six representatives of South Carolina academic libraries discussed the effects of networking in their libraries.

At the organizational meeting of the new Archives and Special Collections Roundtable Thursday afternoon, the discussion centered around the purposes for which people might join the roundtable and ways in which it might address the needs of its constituents. Some of those represented expressed their interest in starting new special collections, organizing local history and genealogy collections in county libraries, and indexing local newspapers. After the by-laws were approved, the following officers were elected: Ronald Chepesiuk, Chairperson; Kathy Roe Coker, Chairperson-elect; and Robert Williams, Secretary. Winthrop College was suggested as the site for a workshop late in May. Williams volunteered to edit a newsletter for the roundtable.

The School Libraries Section and the Bibliographic Instruction Interest Group of the Public Services Section jointly presented "Does the Left Hand Know What the Right Hand is Doing? A Workshop on the Communication Gap Between Instruction Librarians." The workshop featured Don Kenney of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University speaking on "Library Literacy for the Masses: Establishing Standards for Bibliographic Instruction." His report, based on the results of a survey of Virginia libraries, showed among other things that academic librarians are becoming as or more active in bibliographic instruction than school librarians have traditionally been. He concluded with some practical advice for would-be survey-takers: hire an expert to help to design the questionnaire; avoid questions that require long or ranked answers; use a uniform question type throughout the questionnaire; provide those surveyed with self-addressed stamped envelopes; if possible, use a computer to tabulate the survey data.

Dr. David McMillan held a seminar on "Time Management for Librarians" for the joint meeting of the Special Library Section and the Library Administration Section on Friday morning. He exploded among others the popular myths that better productivity; that a door open to one's staff is always... the best policy; and that anything less than perfection is unthinkable. His presentation concluded with a videotape based on Alan Lakein's How to Get Control of Your Time and Your Life. The business meetings of the two sections which were to have been held after McMillan's talk were held simultaneously beforehand. At the meeting of the Special Library Section Erma Kauer was elected Chairperson-Elect and Mary Cross was elected Secretary.

"AACR II Countdown: Some Considerations for Decision-Makers" was the topic addressed by Arlene Taylor Dowell, guest speaker for the Technical Services Section at their meeting. Dowell reported on her studies of the impact of AACR II on a small (95,000 volumes), a medium (630,000 volumes) and a large (2,500,000 volumes) library. She presented detailed statistics on the immediate and long-term effects of the new cataloging rules on the various kinds of headings found in existing catalogs.

At the business meeting of the On-Line Users Interest Group Shannon Clever was elected Vice-Chairperson and Suzanne Holler, Secretary. Discussion followed of the planned workshop on governmental databases, to be presented in cooperation with the Government Documents Roundtable.

After a lively discussion and a close vote, the Executive Board authorized the formation of a Two-Year College Section with Ann Burton of the Beltline Campus of Midlands TEC as acting chairman. Petitions signed by more than 50 members of the 26 two-year colleges -- private, branches of USC, technical -- had previously been submitted in accordance with the SCLA constitution. At the organizational meeting, potential members of the new section adopted a constitution. Later in the month, Ann Burton was elected chairman, Nancy Rogan of the Library Processing Center, USC, was elected vice-chairman/chairman-elect, and Nelle Bonnett of the LRC at Aiken TEC, secretary. Ann and Nancy are both graduates of the Library School of USC, and Nelle, in addition to her library duties at Aiken TEC is a student at USC-A.
This section will provide programs and activities of interest to the association as well as to the two-year colleges and will, no doubt, bring new members to SCLA and new faces into the Executive Board.

Barbara Ferry Johnson, JMRT's featured luncheon speaker, captured her audience with her description of the genesis of the major characters in her novels. Ms. Johnson said that her novels generally develop from several main characters, around whom she builds a plot. Ms. Johnson said she looks for and creates situations in which the strength of her characters can be tested and demonstrated. In developing the novel, said Ms. Johnson, "Research is vital to the characters, setting and the plot. In fact, research will help develop the plot." A strong supporter of libraries, Ms. Johnson said she is generally "able to get all her research materials through one library. The tremendous thing is that they are able to get it all."

Ms. Johnson said that women writers are very much in demand by publishers these days -- so much so that a number of men are now writing under female pseudonyms. Aware that the basic concepts demonstrated in her novels are not universally accepted, Ms. Johnson said, "Feminists may be furious with me, but I happen to feel love is important. My women characters draw their strength from the men they love."

In the joint meeting of the Children and Young People Section and the School Librarian Section, Bernadine Rivera, Clinical Psychologist from Greenville, led a responsive group of approximately 100 school and public librarians in a lively session on communicating with children and teenagers. Beginning with the importance of trying to understand in a non-judgmental way the real causes behind their own behavior and the children's, Ms. Rivera showed the group how to identify and use the transactional analysis concepts of Adult, Parent, and Child to hear and reach their patrons. She then discussed the cause of stress that affect librarians and youth today and suggested positive strokes and specific exercises or games that can be used to relieve tension. (Anyone interested in borrowing a tape of the program for the purpose of staff training may contact Mary Aiken, 220 Ann St., Pickens, S. C. 29671.)

The Public Library Section's meeting opened with a presentation by Charles Robinson of the Baltimore County Library, who spoke on "Giving Them What They Want: Marketing, Community Analysis and Merchandising Library Services." He surprised many members of the section by having neither horns nor pitchfork. Mr. Robinson's theme was that, since public libraries are supposedly for the public, they should be delivering the services the public wants. Public librarians, especially those involved in adult services, have no place as teachers, attempting to uplift the reading level of the masses. Also, with the rise of public colleges and universities, the public library should not attempt to be the major research library in its area. Weeding should be a constant process, with infrequently used materials being discarded.

At the business meeting which followed, several changes were made in the section's by-laws. The executive board's functions were streamlined, and the committee structure was reorganized.
GODORT's chairman, Norman Belk, announced at the roundtable's third annual meeting that Joan Sorenson and Jack Pitzer are members of a committee to provide planning and liaison with the Online Users Group in sponsoring a joint workshop next Spring. Mary Toll reported that the state depository bill which was defeated in the General Assembly this year will be introduced again next year by Senators Keyserling and Smith. Mary Bull described her survey of federal depository libraries in the state and announced that the final report would be published in the South Carolina Librarian and would also be mailed to the participants. GODORT's guest speaker, Mr. Dan MacGilvrary, editor of Public Documents Highlights, spoke on the subject of regional depository libraries. Mr. MacGilvrary pointed out that housing, staffing, and financial structure are the factors to consider in establishing a regional depository. He predicted that because of economic conditions, the 1980's would be the decade for documents.

Friday evening's banquet speaker, Thomas J. Galvin, again brought up the growing involvement of private industry in what has been seen as the domain of the traditional library. Galvin stated that the future of the traditional library is now questionable in light of a shift in public support toward a "free market approach" to information. Galvin said the public questions the role of government in the dissemination of information, and cited as an example the growing pressure on Congress from the publishing industry to phase out the Government Printing Office and let the private sector handle the distribution of government information. "Being a liberal," said Galvin, "is definitely out. Being a repentent liberal is in." Galvin further said that librarians cannot expect a single, simple solution to the problem of library funding, and that librarians must learn to understand and participate in debate on information and public policy. The failure of the National Periodicals Center, Galvin feels is a good example of librarians' inability to convince. "Librarians," he said, "must come to grips with private, commercial sources of information. Librarians must become ambitious, creative, realistic, political, and we must have our act together."

At the joint luncheon meeting of the School Library Section and South Carolina Association of School Librarians, Robert Clyde Bulla accepted the annual South Carolina Book Award for his story, Shoe Shine Girl, and spoke about the development of the story from a real character he discovered in a city. Although sparsely attended, the meeting proved very worthwhile, as Mr. Bulla is as fine a storyteller in speaking as in writing. Autograph sessions both before and after proved the popularity of Mr. Bulla among librarians.
The Executive Board of the South Carolina Library Association met in the Pendleton Room of the Carolina Inn, Columbia, S. C. on Thursday, October 9, 1980 at 10:00 a.m.

The Minutes of the August 8, 1980, meeting were approved as mailed.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

The presidents of the Southeastern state associations met in Atlanta in August. It was recommended at that meeting that incoming presidents be included for future meetings since issues are discussed which continue into the next term. SELA is encouraging state associations to adopt a biennial rather than an annual convention policy in hopes of boosting attendance at SELA's convention. Only two associations in the Southeast meet biennially at this time -- North Carolina and Georgia. Membership during non-convention years tend to drop, cutting association income. At the same time, expenses continue at the same level in maintaining association activities. For this reason, a preference for an annual state convention was put on record for South Carolina.

The South Carolina Newspaper Project has been started at the prompting of the National Endowment for the Humanities to gain bibliographic control over newspapers that have existed through the years in this state. A meeting was called by Ken Toombs, Director of the University of South Carolina Libraries, with representatives of the South Caroliniana Library, the USC School of Journalism, the South Carolina Library Association, and the South Carolina State Library. The University will apply for an Endowment grant to fund the project. Assurances of support in all ways but financial were given on behalf of the South Carolina Library Association.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Donna Nance called attention to a modification in format in the way the report is written. The figures in the report indicated the status of accounts before convention expenses were deducted. The General Fund showed income to date of $20,510.11 and expenses of $11,752.23.

The President pointed out that a contribution to the ALA Washington Office has as yet not been made although it was budgeted.

A statistical breakdown on membership was also made available separating the figures on the basis of county of residence, type of library, type of activity, and years of membership.

SECTION AND ROUND TABLE REPORTS

College and University: A summary of the Section's activities for the year was given by Martha Evatt. In addition to actively support the Association's legislative program, a survey was made of their membership roster and a successful campaign sponsored to increase membership. A contribution was given to the SCLA Publicity Committee. Barbara Jenkins was appointed liaison for the NC/SC 1981 Joint Convention in Charlotte. A request was made but without success to the Executive Board of SCLA to change the convention period to Wednesday thru Friday, rather than Thursday thru Saturday.

Library Administration: Susan Husman read the report prepared by Jeff Rippel. A workshop, "Friends of Libraries", was held September 20 at Richland County Library. There were over 40 registrants with a breakeven point of 30 for expenses. Based on the response to the workshop, present Section officers hope the Section can play a continuing role in focusing attention on "friends", possibly by offering more advanced workshops of assistance to them.

Public Services: Trish Ridgeway stated that a newsletter had been sent to their membership with plans for future section activities.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE REPORTS

1980 Convention Committee: Bill Summers stated that the Convention should be very close to the budget. Attendance is estimated to be 450; approximately 330 were pre-registered.

1981 Convention Committee: No report. The President stated that the incoming 1st Vice President will be appointed chairperson of this committee immediately following the election.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORTS

Planning Committee: The report of the Chairman, Alice Nolte, was read by the Secretary. The report stated the Committee's recommendations in regard to topics it covered. The recommendations were:

1) that, in accordance with the Committee's charge, a mail survey of the membership be made early in 1981 to determine their interests before planning the activities of sections and the 1982 convention programs.

2) that formation of a statewide "friends" group be postponed pending further study.

3) that the outgoing President of SCLA act as coordinator of sections activities and workshops for the coming year, with March 1 as a planning deadline.

The Committee requests the replacement of Meg Ezell as a member and the reinstatement of Elsbeth Pope.

Bill Summers moved that the Executive Board receive the report of the Planning Committee as information. Penny Albright seconded the motion and the motion carried.
OTHER REPORTS

ALA Councilor: Carol Duggan commented on the successful membership drive conducted within South Carolina.

SELA Representative: A new representative to SELA will take office following the convention--Ken Toombs of the USC Library.

Editor, S. C. Librarian: Larry Mitlin announced that a questionnaire to determine the wishes of the membership in regard to the publications would be available in the exhibit area. Members were asked to complete the questionnaires and return them during the convention period. Tom Gilson of Greenville County Library developed the questionnaire.

OLD BUSINESS

A subcommittee of the Executive Board was established after the last Board meeting for the purpose of reviewing the work of the Handbook Revision Committee. The subcommittee was made up of Gerda Belknap, Dan Festa, Tom Marcil, Drucilla Reeves and Bill Summers. Dan Festa reported that the subcommittee made necessary editorial changes in the Revision and sent their recommendations on the the Revision Committee. The subcommittee also recommends to the Executive Board that distribution be made with no charge to the Executive Board, committees and upon request to other members. Notice of the availability will be placed in the Association publications.

Bill Summers moved that the Executive Board receive the Handbook with revisions and that it be distributed to officers, committee members and to the Association membership upon request. The motion was seconded by Drucilla Reeves and carried.

The President stated that the estimated publication cost would be $600 for 1000 copies, using eye-tech printing in a loose-leaf format. Penny Albright made a motion that up to $600 be expended for publication of the third edition of the Handbook. The motion was seconded by Carl Stone and carried.

NEW BUSINESS

At the August 8, 1980, meeting of the Executive Board, the Board acted on the recommendation of the Archives Study Committee and authorized the President to negotiate a contract with Winthrop College for the maintenance of Association records. The President called attention to a letter from Winthrop to the Board in regard to these arrangements. A motion was made by Carl Stone and seconded by Dan Festa authorizing the President to sign the agreement. The motion carried with Bill Summers abstaining.

Gerda Belknap, Parliamentarian, was asked to interpret Article VI, Section 3 of the By-laws regarding the Board's authority. The Section reads:

Sections of the Association may be organized upon application to and approval of the Executive Board. The application must include a petition signed by fifty members of the Association. Such organization will take place January 1 after approval of the Executive Board. The Executive Board will appoint an acting chairman to serve until elections can be held.
According to the Parliamentarian, the phrase "approval of the Executive Board" was intended to imply that the Board had final decision for the well being of the Association over the creation of any new sections. The presentation of a petition is a request which awaits the Board's deliberation and decision. It is not a procedure which culminates in automatic approval.

A petition was presented to the Board by Marty Pautz bearing the required number of signatures in accordance with the By-laws and requesting the establishment of a two year college section within SCLA. He spoke in behalf of the petition stressing that there were 26 two year colleges in the state with needs and interests that were distinct from colleges and universities. A motion was made by Marty Pautz and seconded by Dan Koenig that the section for two year colleges be formed. The negative aspects of the addition of another section to the existing structure were outlined as follows: proliferation of meetings and workshops year round and at the convention; increased financial burden to the Association necessitated by expanding the computer program which maintains membership records; increased expenses to the Association arising from attendance at Board meetings and travel reimbursement; loss of membership and revenue to sections already in existence; and lack of a broad view and policy by the Board as to how far the Association should go in dividing the interests of the membership without damaging the effectiveness of the organization. The positive points in favor of the formation of this section were a significant number of non-SCLA members were meeting informally as a two year college group who would be attracted to Association membership provided there was a unit which met their needs and interests; that they have expressed an interest in working within the SCLA organization; and that a healthy organization should be willing to grow. After a long discussion by the Board, the question was called by Drucilla Reeves and seconded by Susan Husman. The motion to call the question was carried. The parliamentarian ruled on the eligibility of those present to vote. The original motion on two year college section creation was restated and carried on a vote of 7 to 6.

Bill Summers moved the adoption by the Executive Board of the following policy:

The intention of the Constitution and By-laws is that Sections and Round Tables operate within the financial resources raised by their income.

It is recognized that from time to time Sections and Round Tables may wish to pursue programs and projects which are beyond their financial resources. In such instances the organizational unit may submit the proposal to the Executive Board for a one-time allocation of general funds.

The Executive Board will review the proposal with consideration to its costs relative to the Association's health and the benefits to the Association membership.

The motion was seconded by Dan Festa and was carried.

The December Board meeting having been dispensed with by motion at the August meeting, the President urged members going off the Board to use the expertise and experience they had in the operations of the Association to continue to support and benefit the Association and thanked them for their efforts during the past year.

The meeting was adjourned at 11:35 p.m.

ETC.

Please note the membership renewal form which is attached to this issue. Your membership renewal is now due, and if you take this opportunity to complete an important professional detail we will all benefit: you'll have it out of the way, SCLA will be saved the expense of sending you follow-ups, sections will know how many members they have, etc. Please invite your colleagues who may not already be members to join with us in this exciting period of growth and development. And, too, remind those who have not renewed their memberships that they are missed!

Libby Law reports that SCLA's Public Library Section is developing a basic list of reference tools for small public libraries (including branches). Libby would like to contact people interested in serving on the committee to develop the list. Libby's address is 1500 Senate Street, P. O. Box 11469, Columbia, 29211.

Our special thanks to Steve Watt of Newberry College and Dan Koenig of PTEC for their help in the photographic work for this issue.

The Library of Presbyterian College is the recipient of a $500,000 gift from retired South Carolina businessman James H. Thomason and his wife, Mrs. Sarah Dunlap Thomason, according to a recent announcement by PC's President, Dr. Kenneth B. Orr.

The gift comes in the form of a charitable remainder trust to establish the James H. Thomason Library Endowment Fund. Its purpose is to provide salary supplements for the library staff, to keep the facility in excellent repair, and to assure the purchase of books and equipment for the library program. This gift is added to a $750,000 donation made 11 years ago to help underwrite the James H. Thomason Library at PC and brings the total Thomason contribution to $1,250,000—largest total gift by an individual in the 100-year history of the College.

The 120,000 volume library serves an enrollment of 950 students and its program is well known for its emphasis on bibliographic instruction. Librarians are Dr. Lennart Pearson, Director, and Mrs. Jane T. Presseau, Student Services Librarian.

COMMENTARY

The executive board's discussion of the new Two-Year College Library Section raised some disquieting questions about the future of SCLA. At face value, the decision to create another section seems rather minor, except that the arguments against the move brought out some points which will probably be heard again and again in the next few years.

The point in favor of the action which was probably the most convincing is that by creating a new section SCLA has provided, within its own structure, the opportunity to share professional concerns and opinions for a sizable number of librarians who had felt... that SCLA was not providing what they needed. Those librarians, as someone on the board pointed out, were meeting on their own anyway and were determined to have some kind of professional organization which reflected what they saw as very specific needs. Better, for a variety of reasons (some lofty, some very mundane) to have that organization within the SCLA structure than outside it.

There is nothing which says that the new section is a permanent fixture in the SCLA scene. As with all the others, the Two-year section will have to make it on its own. If, in the next few years, there is a decline in interest which shrinks, section membership below the magic number, the Two-year section will join the ranks of defunct sections and interest groups. In the meantime, the Two-year people will have the opportunity to provide themselves and the rest of SCLA with informative and useful activities.

The argument against the section which creates the greatest concern is that the addition of a new section makes an already unwieldy executive board even more so.

That concern may be valid, but it points to an underlying problem the Association may not yet be ready or willing to face: its ability to meet the challenges of growth.

One of the most outstanding happenings at this year's convention was the Association's high membership. SCLA now has well over a thousand members, and growth will probably continue because South Carolina will continue to grow along with the rest of the Sunbelt. Growth brings with it many opportunities, but it also brings problems that must be faced and overcome. We assume that no one will want the Association to stay where it is or go back to "The Good Old Days," but hesitation to add an activity because of the feeling that the structure can't cope with it indicates that it may be time to start looking at where the Association wants to go in the next few years and what it will do when it gets there. New interest groups will arise, and it is doubtful that older groups will be willing to die off to make room for them. If librarians and the friends of libraries do not feel that their professional needs can be met within the organization, they most assuredly will go elsewhere. They have done that before, and they will do it again.

SCLA represents a profession which daily faces challenges that others would find overwhelming, and meets those challenges with success. SCLA must now face the challenges brought by its own success. If indeed, the Board is unwieldy, perhaps it is a sign that SCLA is ready for new approaches to its administrative activities.

We are confident that SCLA can and will find ways to better meet the challenges of organizational administration. It can and must, for the alternatives is stagnation and disinterest. -- John E. Sukovich

The above commentary is strictly the opinion of the writer and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of SCLA or its administration. Opposing opinions will probably receive short shrift, but they are nevertheless welcome.
