FROM THE PRESIDENT

Incredible though it seems, this is my final column as President of SCLA. Before the December issue of News and Views appears, we will have been to the annual conference, elected officers, and installed a new president.

This has been a good year for SCLA with a tremendous amount of activity resulting in substantial progress. Let me review some of the achievements.

Long-Range Planning: Progress has been made in implementing the Long-Range Plan developed in 1988. All SCLA units have reviewed their charges, proposed revisions, and in most cases initiated changes. A Financial Planning and Development Committee has been authorized to help bring financial stability to the Association. A proposal for a new dues structure will be presented to the membership during the annual conference.

Constitution and By-Laws: The Constitution and By-Laws Committee has done yeoman’s work in codifying the numerous proposed changes to be presented for membership action. Following the conference a new edition of the SCLA Handbook will be published so that all members may receive a copy.

Membership: The Membership Committee has worked mightily to recruit and reenlist members. At the end of August we had more than 670 members. We hope that renewals during conference registration will bring the total well beyond 1988’s 730 members. (A Membership Directory, based on the September 1 rolls, will be published shortly.)

Continuing Education: SCLA’s sections and round tables sponsored an extraordinary number of workshops this year. Among the topics were the planning process, strategic management, federal documents inspections, serving student users, CD-ROM products, trusteeship, career skills, preservation and disaster planning, grant-writing, non-paper records, and computer-based information services. Several workshops are still to be held this fall.

Cooperation: SCLA cooperated with other library associations, the State Library, and the College of Library and Information Science at USC in sponsoring several major events. Among these were participation in Library Legislative Day in Washington, the First Freedom Workshop, and the Workshop on Libraries and the Political Process.

News and Views: This is the fifth issue of our revitalized newsletter. Steve Johnson and the Editorial Committee have provided us with timely and useful information. Well Done!

Interlibrary Loan Study: A special committee chaired by Larry Mitlin of Winthrop has initiated a survey of interlibrary loan policies and practices in preparation for recommending changes in the state ILL code and protocols. We should receive the results of this study early in 1990.

75th Anniversary: Paul Dove of Francis Marion chaired an ad hoc committee which recommended ways to celebrate SCLA’s 75th anniversary in 1990. Plans will be unveiled during the Awards Breakfast in Hilton Head. Come join us to kick off the celebration.

63rd Annual Conference: Finally, but by no means least, plans have been made for an outstanding conference November 15-17 on "Information Services and Economic Development in South Carolina." Vice-President Joe Boykin, assisted by section and round table chairs, has arranged an exciting line-up of speakers. I hope you will be there.

My thanks to all who have helped move SCLA forward this year -- officers, sections, round tables, committees, our executive secretary, and, especially, to every member who joined and supported the Association.

Bad News and Good News About SCLA Dues

They Are Expected to Increase for 1990, But You Can Renew at the Old Rate Before the End of the Convention

That’s right, the SCLA Board has proposed that the dues be increased for several categories (see page 14). Assuming this is approved by the general membership at Hilton Head, it will take effect in 1990.

Now for the good news. At its August meeting the Board passed a motion allowing SCLA membership renewals at the current rate for anyone who does so before or during the SCLA Annual Conference, as an incentive for membership (see page 11). So be prepared to take advantage of this special savings before you leave the Conference.

Carolina Microfilm, Inc. and the Minolta Corporation announce the brand new library microfilm reader/printer, the Minolta RP605Z.

A complete universal microfilm system, Minolta's new RP605Z, is compact, yet has a generous 12" X 12" viewing screen. It provides simple, logically-arrayed controls to ensure superior operating comfort and ease of use. Minolta's superior optics and proven Micro-Toning System combine to produce clean, crisp, high-contrast prints on plain paper, conveniently delivered in the built-in front copy tray.

Some of the advantages of the Minolta RP605Z include:

- Automatic bimodal printing produces positive copies from both positive and negative microfilm images without any intervention by the operator.

- Zoom lenses provide the ultimate in magnification ease and versatility.

- Automatic frame masking eliminates black borders and reduces toner consumption.

- Electronic automatic exposure control assures consistently excellent copies from every type of film.

- Four film carriers are available with either manual, semi-automatic, or fully automatic film load.

The New Minolta RP605Z provides unmatched economy and productivity for all your library needs.
PALM COP

A Model Preservation Program

by Sharon Bennett
Chair, PALM COP

In 1986 the Palmetto Archives, Libraries, and Museum Council on Preservation (PALM COP) was chartered to promote education on conservation issues and to devise and implement coordinated preservation projects within the state. Its membership includes academic, public and special libraries; archives of public and private holdings, including museums; and public records offices.

As a relatively small state, South Carolina was ideal for this precedent setting approach to preservation planning; the state possesses a rich documentary heritage, but lacks the financial resources necessary for preservation efforts. The organization was fortunate to receive assistance from the Southeastern Libraries Network (SOLINET). SOLINET's preservation officer, Lisa Fox, was instrumental in obtaining NEH funding to train a cadre of preservation consultants, who would, in turn, conduct preservation needs assessment surveys of a sampling of institutions across the state. The selection of the interns was based not only on demonstrated knowledge and commitment to preservation, but also to geographic location, in an effort to establish a preservation network throughout the state.

The consultants have completed the surveys, and are in the process of compiling their reports. Under the terms of the NEH grant, the consultants were to write another report directed to the board and membership of PALM COP. That report, to be published this October, summarizes the survey findings, and recommends a preservation agenda for the state to be implemented by PALM COP's membership over the next five years.

One of the most valuable aspects of this project is the increased level of preservation awareness throughout the state. Many of the institutions surveyed have already implemented changes and established preservation priorities as a result of the survey experience. In addition six well-trained preservation consultants are now available as resource people to any archive, library, or museum. There is at least one consultant in every region of the state.

The interns will continue to work through PALM COP, providing surveys on request, and funds generated will be used to help fund PALM COP's preservation education programs. These programs include a cycle of regional workshops across the state and the publication of a series of technical and informational brochures.

We believe that PALM COP can provide three levels of service.

(1) We will use the preservation specialists as a corps of instructors in a repeating cycle of introductory workshops in book repair, environmental controls specifications, basic paper and photographic conservation, preservation planning, and public outreach.

(2) More advanced techniques and more complex issues can be addressed in annual membership meetings and special seminars, for which we will have outside speakers.

(3) PALM COP can provide a recognizable entity to promote preservation funding and preservation legislation with the General Assembly and grant funding agencies.

The real work of the organization will be to educate its members and to help them work together on special projects such as disaster recovery stockpiles, book repair centers, and the construction of adequate regional storage facilities.

We are very optimistic and enthusiastic about what has been accomplished. If the PALM COP plan develops as we hope it will, South Carolina will provide a preservation program model suitable for many other states.

The 63rd SCLA CONVENTION

"Information Services and Economic Development in South Carolina"

November 15-17, 1989
Hilton Head Island, S. C.

You should be making your plans now to attend the 1989 SCLA conference on Hilton Head Island, November 15-17, 1989. There will be three major speakers plus a number of outstanding section and round-table programs. The festivities begin with the opening of exhibits at 12:30 p.m. on Wednesday, and run through the Author Luncheon on Friday.

General Sessions

General Session speakers include Mr. Wayne Sterling, Director of the South Carolina State Development Board, and Ms. Patricia Senn Breivik of Auraria Library in Denver. Both of these speakers will talk about information and information services and how they impact upon the economic development of South Carolina. The Author Luncheon speaker is Ms. Betsy Byars, noted children's author and winner of the Newberry Award.

Reservations

You should have received the call to conference information by now, if not, contact Drucie Reeves for a copy. It is important that you send your hotel reservations in before October 15th. The Hyatt will not accept phone reservations and you must send a check for one night's stay to secure your room. We only have 100 rooms at the Hyatt, any overflow will go to the Mariner's Inn which is in Palmetto Dunes with the Hyatt. If you are part of the overflow, don't worry, you will enjoy the Mariner's Inn.

Pre-conferences

There are three pre-conferences being held prior to the opening of the conference itself. Information on these are included in the Call to Conference. Registration for each of these is handled separately from the conference registration. Please also note that the cost for on site conference registration is considerably more expensive than pre-registration, so get your registration in early.

Child Care

Some have asked about the availability of child care at the conference. The Hyatt has "Camp Sand Dollar" which is for children 3-15, (9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m.). The day camp costs $25.00 per day and the evening session is $20.00 per evening. In addition, for children under three, arrangements for baby sitting may be made through the hotel.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA LIBRARY HERITAGE PROJECT

by Robert V. Williams
College of Library and Information Science
University of South Carolina

PURPOSES

The South Carolina Library Heritage Project was designed to accomplish five major goals:

(1) compile a complete bibliography of all published materials on the history of libraries and librarians in the state,

(2) create a database of all types of materials (archival records, manuscripts, artifacts, photographs, etc.) that would have use to anyone writing about the history of any single library or a group of libraries in the state,

(3) conduct oral history interviews of noted librarians (with emphasis on interviewing black librarians),

(4) create exhibits that illustrated the heritage of state's libraries,

(5) encourage continuing scholarly research and writing on the history of libraries and the library profession in the state.

The project was established in September, 1986. It has been funded and supported by four different institutions in the state: the South Carolina Humanities Council, the South Carolina State Library, the South Carolina Library Association, and the College of Library and Information Science of the University of South Carolina. These four organizations have all maintained a keen interest in the project because it contributes to their own goals in demonstrating the value and heritage of libraries in the history and life of the state. The direct funding of the project over three years has been approximately $30,000.

The project has been housed in the College of Library and Information Science where the Project Director is a full-time faculty member. Graduate assistants have been the core staff of the project and central to its accomplishments. Officially, the project ended in July 1989, but a firm foundation has been laid for continuation of the work on the five objectives.

Details on the results accomplished by the project are given below according to the five major objectives. It is our view that these (or similar) objectives are also appropriate ones for documenting the history of libraries and the library profession in any state. We believe that these kinds of projects are needed in order to create an appreciation and an understanding of the work of library and information professionals locally, regionally, and nationally.

RESULTS

Library History Bibliography:
A bibliography, compiled by Barrett Wilkins, of the history of South Carolina's libraries was published by the Journal of Library History in 1973. During the course of the project we have updated and revised the Wilkins bibliography, adding over 200 citations to it. The entire bibliography is now in a computerized database and available to researchers. It will continue to be updated as part of the on-going work of the project. Funding is being sought to publish the new bibliography so that it will have wide distribution.

Library History Research Database:
Identification of available materials for writing about the history of a single library or group of libraries is one of the most difficult and time-consuming tasks facing the library historian. A survey has been done of all libraries in the state to determine the kinds of archival and manuscript materials they have available that are relevant to their own or other libraries. In addition, all major archival and manuscript collections in other states that could be identified as having

BATTLE CHRONICLES OF THE CIVIL WAR

JAMES M. McPHERSON, General Editor

From Ft. Sumter to Appomattox, this remarkable reference source brings to life every major and most minor battles of the Civil War—in six lavishly illustrated volumes.

Drawing on contributions by noted scholars such as Bell I. Wiley, T. Harry Williams, Stephen B. Oates, and James M. McPherson, Battle Chronicles of the Civil War devotes one volume to each year of the war; a sixth volume contains biographies of Lincoln, Lee, Grant, Jackson, and other figures, and an extensive index.

Here are vivid accounts of each battle—move by move, day by day—along with extensive coverage of the larger political and military significance, and a close look at everyday life on the battlefields and the home front. McPherson provides incisive introductions and transition materials linking the volumes. And there are scores of maps, rare photographs, and contemporary illustrations.

relevant materials have been contacted and a record of these materials has been made. This information has been entered into a database (using the IN MAGIC software) and is available to interested researchers. It will also continue to be updated as other materials are identified.

Oral History Interviews:
Documentation of the history of libraries and librarians has been very neglected in South Carolina. Even more neglected, however, has been the work of black librarians in the state. To improve this situation, the project has interviewed over twenty librarians, with emphasis on black librarians, and these recorded and transcribed interviews will be available (depending on restrictions placed by the interviewee) to researchers and to the institutions where they worked.

Exhibits Showing The Heritage Of Libraries:
The general public often assumes that libraries have always been as freely available and as widely dispersed as they now appear in the state. Two exhibits have been created to show both the struggle and the accomplishments that have brought us to our current situation. The first exhibit, From Village to State: The Foundations of South Carolina’s Public Libraries, depicts through photographs and story the progress that has been made to establish and fund public libraries. The second exhibit, Adventures in Faith: Library Services to Blacks in South Carolina, shows both the faithful struggle and the successful achievements that black citizens of the state have made for library services. Each exhibit, costing approximately $1,000 to prepare, had its initial showing at the annual meeting of the South Carolina Library Association and is now available for display at any institution in the state through the S. C. State Museum's Traveling Exhibit Program. Other exhibits will be developed as funds become available. (The exhibits may be reserved by libraries through the South Carolina State Museum Travelling Program. To reserve an exhibit call Ms. Beverly Littlejohn at 737-4921.)

Encouraging Historical Research:
All of the results noted above are intended to encourage and stimulate research on the heritage of South Carolina’s libraries. The project staff, however, has also been directly involved in doing this by writing historical articles for the South Carolina Librarian, giving courses and lectures to classes in the College of Library and Information Science, and assisting individual researchers as they inquire about the history of

ACTIONS TAKEN AT THE SCLA BOARD MEETING
August 5, 1989

1. Approved allowing SCLA membership renewals at the current rate for anyone who does so before or during the SCLA Annual Conference, as an incentive for membership.

2. Approved the amending of the Conference budget as presented by the Conference chairman/first vice president.

3. Approved providing a guarantee of funds in support of the workshop on "Libraries and the Political Process" that will be jointly sponsored by the Legislative Committee and the South Carolina Association of School Librarians on September 9. These funds will only be provided if the workshop cannot pay for itself.

4. Approved by consensus the revisions to the SCLA Handbook as recommended by the Committee.

5. Approved the report of the Constitution, By-laws, and Handbook Committee, with the changes and the revisions that are to be presented at the Annual Conference to the general membership.

6. Accepted by consensus the report of the 75th Anniversary Planning Committee. Official unveiling of the anniversary logo will be at the close of the Fourth General Session of the Annual Conference in Hilton Head.

7. Approved the Association being a co-sponsor of the activities on November 15, Young Reader's Day.

Greenville Library Receives Federal Grants

The Greenville County Library has been awarded three Library Services and Construction Act Grants (LSCA) from the United States Department of Education. These grants, totaling $13,700 will expand the existing services and collections of the library.

A telefacsimile machine has been installed in the Reference Department of the Main Library. Funded by an LSCA Title III grant, the FAX machine will expedite interlibrary loan transactions as well as promote resource sharing with other libraries. The Greenville County Library is among five libraries statewide participating in the project.

To encourage greater utilization of the Library's collection of literacy videocassettes, a videocassette player has been added to the Audiovisual Department of the Main Library. Patrons who do not have personal videocassette players in their homes will be able to view the literacy cassettes while in the library.

$10,000 of the LSCA funds will provide books and other library materials to the branch libraries and on the bookmobile.

For more information, call the Library at 242-5000, ext. 37.

SIXTH BOOK OF JUNIOR AUTHORS & ILLUSTRATORS
Edited by Sally Holmes Holtze
$40 U.S. & Canada; $45 Other Countries

For 54 years, librarians, educators, and parents have used the Junior Authors & Illustrators series to introduce young readers to their favorite writers and artists. Now, both children and young adults can “meet” more of these creators via the SIXTH BOOK OF JUNIOR AUTHORS & ILLUSTRATORS. This book presents nearly 250 fascinating biographical sketches (nearly two-thirds autobiographical) of noted authors and illustrators who have achieved prominence in junior literature since the FIFTH BOOK was published in 1983.

A “Who’s Who” Packed with Vital Information
Like its predecessors in the series, SIXTH BOOK serves as a veritable “Who’s Who” of the field. It offers facts, lively anecdotes, observations, and insights about each subject’s life, career, and individual works. All entries contain bibliographies of major works by and about each author or illustrator; most feature photographs and personal signatures. Included are such recognized talents as Paul B. Janeczko, Lisbeth Zwerger, Russell Freedman, Ann E. Weiss, Allan Say, Miriam Chiaken, Jerry Pinkney, and many, many others.

Ideal for Research and Reading
Teachers, librarians, parents, young adults, and children will find SIXTH BOOK invaluable for discovering new books and for conducting research. Organized for maximum accessibility, SIXTH BOOK provides a comprehensive index to the entire series with cross-references to pen names.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

LSCA Progresses

Legislation to extend the existing Library Services and Construction Act (LSCA) for five years was approved by House and Senate education subcommittees on July 12 and 13. The bills, HR 2742 and S. 1291 would also make modest changes: increasing the emphasis on technology, especially by allowing LSCA II funds to be used for equipment even when not part of a construction project; adding literacy and child-centered activities in Title I; adding preservation as an eligible emphasis in Titles II and III; and adding a new Title VII authorizing $500,000 for evaluation and assessment of LSCA by the Department of Education.

Two amendments were added to HR 2742 at markup: the addition of drug abuse prevention materials and programming as an eligible Title I activity, and a new Title VIII called Family Learning Centers.

Permanent Paper Policy

S.J. Res. 57, introduced by Sen. Claiborne Pell (D-RI) to establish a national policy to promote and encourage the printing of books and other publications of enduring value on alkaline, permanent papers, was passed by the Senate by voice vote on July 31, 1989. The House companion measure, H.J. Res. 226, was introduced by Rep. Pat Williams (D-MT) on March 23. It is still in committee.

Ground-breaking Ceremonies Held for Symmes Branch in Greenville

The official ground-breaking ceremony for the new Frederick W. Symmes branch of the Greenville County Library System was held on Tuesday, September 12, 1989.

The new 12,000 square foot branch will be located on Greenville's eastside at the corner of Pelham and Riley Smith roads. It will accommodate a collection of approximately 60,000 volumes and is being constructed so that it may eventually be expanded to 18,000 square feet. Construction is expected to be completed by late summer of 1990.

Hugo Hits Libraries

Preliminary reports in LION, the state library online network, indicate that overall damage from Hugo to libraries in South Carolina was minor. For the most part libraries in the eastern and central part of the state were closed for several days because of power outages.

The McClellanville Branch of the Charleston County Libraries was hit hardest. The library "is still standing, but knee-deep in mud." The West Ashley Branch received about two feet of water inside the building. The Cooper River Memorial Library suffered roof damage and water entered the building. No word has been received yet from the Sumter Library.

Dennis Bruce, Director of the Spartanburg County Public Library, reports that the Board of Friends has voted to give $500 in assistance to the library which suffered the most severe damage. Inquiries should be addressed to Dennis Bruce at 596-3507.

Bob May and Mike Reed of Library Equipment/Space Design telephoned the State Library to offer their services in providing free estimates on shelving matters for insurance purposes. Call them at: 871-2202 (work), 875-2124 (home).

A more complete assessment will appear in the next issue of News & Views.
