FROM THE PRESIDENT

Happy New Year and Decade to all!

SCLA is off and running for the new year and decade, its 75th anniversary year! Our Association has indeed provided a Tradition of Leadership during these past seventy-five years and we have a lot of people who have preceded us to thank. I would like to begin this year by expressing my sincere appreciation to all those who worked for SCLA last year. A special thanks goes to Past President Betty Callaham who gave great leadership and made things happen for SCLA during 1989.

SCLA’s membership growth, programming, and services are interconnected. The more we grow the more resources are available to the Association to provide services to our members. These resources are of at least two different types - people and revenues. The larger the membership base, the greater the number of members to call upon for programming and other services. Likewise, the greater the membership numbers, the more revenue these colleagues have to use to provide those services and programming.

All of this is to say that membership renewal and growth are important to all of us. What can you do? First, make sure you have paid your dues for 1990; our new dues year began at the conclusion of the Hilton Head conference. Second, talk to your colleagues, encourage them to join you in SCLA. We have an excellent Board, and Membership Committee which is led by Oakley Coburn, but both need your help in your library. Let’s all get to work so we can reach our goal of 1,000 members this year!

Now is the time to communicate with your colleagues who are serving in leadership positions in SCLA--general officers, sections and round-table chairs as well as committee chairs. Let them know what you would like to see us do this year! We will be having a planning meeting on January 20th for sections, round tables and committees to plan their work for the year. Let them hear from you before or after that meeting.

Joe Boykin
SCLA President

The second White House Conference on Library and Information Services will be held July 9-13, 1991, in Washington, D. C. with the theme of "Library and Information Services for Literacy, Productivity, and Democracy". As in the 1979 White House Conference, delegates from the states and territories will convene to exchange input from all levels in determining library and information needs and to develop recommendations for the future of library services in the United States.

A formula reflecting each state's total representation in Congress will be used to determine the number of delegates allotted to each state. It is expected that South Carolina will send eight delegates to the Conference. The legislation authorizing the conference specifies that each state's delegation must be comprised of equal numbers of professional librarians; active library supporters such as trustees and friends; federal, state, or local government officials; and members of the general public.

Most states will host some type of pre-White House Conference activities. Governor Campbell has designated the State Library to serve as the coordinating agency for pre-conference activities in South Carolina. An advisory committee (see below) has been named to help make decisions regarding these activities, and Dr. Fred Roper, Dean of the University of South Carolina College of Library and Information Science, has agreed to serve as Chairman. The Advisory Committee met on December 14 to explore options of pre-conference format, funding, and delegate selection. The State's master plan for Pre-White House Conference activities must be submitted to the National Commission for Libraries and Information Science by January 30, 1990.

JMRT Holds Developing Career Skills Workshop

The Junior Members Round Table sponsored a workshop "Developing Career Skills," September 15, 1989, at the Northeast Branch of the Richland County Library. Dr. Linda Salane, Director of the University of South Carolina Career Center, was the guest speaker.

Dr. Salane told the audience that there is no specific list nor is there a magic set of exercises to complete that will result in success. Most people base their choice of a job or a career on interest, skills, values and personality. Since interests, skills, and to some extent values change, Dr. Salane suggested that a more effective path to success would be to understand who you are, understand your goals, and make decisions to accomplish those goals. Dr. Salane then explored a number of methods designed to discover and articulates self-awareness and goals.

After lunch, a panel of librarians, Anthony Messineo, Director of the Greenville County Library; Bob Gorman, Head of Public Services at Winthrop; and Helen Ann Rawlinson, Assistant Director of Richland County Public Library discussed the skills they considered important and answered questions from the audience.

JMRT would like to thank the panel and guest speaker for their participation and the staff of Northeast for their hospitality.

Chair, JMRT

SCLA Awards Breakfast Highlights
November 17, 1989
Hyatt Regency Hotel - Hilton Head

Many of us have come to regard the Awards Breakfast as a fun session as well as a rewarding one. Some of the purposes of the Awards Breakfast are:

- to recognize those individuals who have contributed positively to our profession and to our professional goals in an exemplary way,
- to recognize our colleagues and friends for jobs well done, and
- to reward experience.

Members of this year's Awards committee were Liz Hamilton, Trudy Craven, Libby Law, Gale Teaster-Woods, Carol McIver, and Jean Rhyne. They all deserve our "thank yous" for hard work and sometimes difficult decision-making.

On behalf of the Awards committee, I would like to say coordinating all of the awards offered unusual insight into high-quality activities throughout the state. Indeed, all nominations that came our way reflected a state unusually alive with the promotion of library services.

This year's winners reflect well the attributes of present and future librarians and library supporters envisioned in our Convention theme "Information Service and Economic Development in South Carolina."

Our winners are people whose names are known by local and state economic boards. Our winners are people who know librarians by name. These qualities were praised by Patricia Senn Breivik, author of Information Literacy and the Second General Session Speaker.

This year, Betty Callaham, State Librarian and President of SCLA, presented some of the awards, and Norman Belk, Awards Committee Chairman, described those awards. The chairman also called on colleagues to present the remaining awards.

Honorary Life Membership awards
The first awards were the Honorary Life Membership awards. These awards recognize and honor South Carolina Library Association members who are retired and who have been members of the Association for 10 consecutive years.

This award consists of free membership granted to the retiree and a certificate, signed and dated by the President of the Association, signifying the achievement.

This year there were two winners:

Betty Mays Dowling who has been a librarian at the South Conway Elementary School;

Helen Fellers who has been a librarian in public libraries in the Columbia area, technical college libraries in South Carolina, and in other types of library settings. She is chairman of the Publicity Committee.

APLA Trustee Award

Anthony Messineo, Director of the Greenville County Library and chairman of the Awards Committee of APLA (The Association of Public Library Administrators) presented the APLA Trustee Award.

This Award went to Julius McKay, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Richland County Library. Under his leadership, the RCPL experienced its most significant period of growth and development. After months of untiring work and under his leadership, a $27 million bond referendum passed with a 72% majority. This accomplishment was the largest bond referendum ever passed in South Carolina and the largest for a metropolitan community of Columbia's size in the Southeast.

Junior Members Round Table (known as New Members Round Table, effective January 1990) Awards are highly prized awards not only because they honor our colleagues and our profession, but also because they involve our vendors and exhibitors. Much valuable professional work goes on in the exhibit hall, and our vendors deserve our gratitude and our praise. This year JMRT/NMRT selected Patricia Luken Smith of the Richland County Library as the JMRT Awards Committee Chairman. She and her committee took on the considerable task of seeking nominations and coordinating the awards with the SCLA Awards Committee. Much credit goes to Ms. Smith and her committee. These awards are the Baker and Taylor Grassroots Award and the EBSCO Outstanding New Professional Award.

Baker & Taylor Grassroots Award

John Rawl, representing the Baker and Taylor Co., presented the 1989 Baker and Taylor Grassroots Award, which includes a cash award. This award went to Steven Escar Smith, a USC College of Library and Information Science student.

EBSCO Outstanding New Professional Award

Chuck Leachman, representing EBSCO, presented the EBSCO Outstanding New Professional Award, which includes a cash award. This award went to Cynthia Cox Yarborough of Presbyterian College.

Officials from the South Carolina State Library presented one Meritorious Service Award and two Distinguished Service Awards. Jim Johnson, Deputy Director, and George Seago, Chairman of the State Library Board, presented these awards.

Meritorious Service Award

The Meritorious Service Award was presented to the Children's Service Department of the Richland County Public Library. The presentation noted that innovative projects of this department included service to day-care centers, story-time kits, the Junior Volunteer Program, and the Augusta Baker's Dozen storytelling events, which have drawn national recognition during the past three years.

Distinguished Service Award

A Distinguished Service Award was presented to Margaret Haynes for "twenty-five years of devoted service to the children of South Carolina" through her work at the Laurens County Library and throughout the state. The presentation noted that she is "always willing to share her knowledge and expertise with other librarians and goes beyond the call of duty in advising and working with teachers, day-care workers, and organizations in Laurens County.

Valerie Howard Staley also received a Distinguished Service Award. The presentation for her award noted that she has served South Carolina as a school librarian, a college librarian, and a public library trustee. At the South Carolina State College, she "helped direct the growth and expansion of the Miller F. Whittaker Library."
Elma Sanders Rogers won the 1989 Friend of Libraries Award. The presentation noted that she has made tremendous contributions throughout a long career. In the five year period for the award, Mrs. Rogers continued a fund raising campaign which eventually raised $300,000.00 for needed renovations to the Colleton County Memorial Library. She has served on the CCML's Board of Trustees since its inception and as the Chairman of that Board from 1977-1985. Currently she is the historian.

Intellectual Freedom Award

The Intellectual Freedom Award has roots in the South Carolina Library Association and in the South Carolina Association of School Librarians. This year's award was presented at the spring convention of SCASL. Debbie Coleman, President of

Friend of Libraries Award

The Friend of Libraries Award is presented to recognize and honor a person's or organization's outstanding service which has furthered the expansion of library service in South Carolina.

 ACTIONS TAKEN AT SCLA BOARD/BUSINESS MEETINGS **

Executive Board Meeting
October 13, 1989

1. Approved giving to Roger Hux, who is compiling the history of the Association, $65.00 to cover his travel expenses.

2. Board approved transferring the funds of the dissolved Two-Year College Section to the account of the College and University Section.

3. Approved the report of the Constitution, By-laws, and Handbook Revision Committee, with the recommended changes to be made to the Handbook and the items that are to be voted upon by the general membership at the Annual Conference.

4. Accepted and approved two motions presented by the Library and Personnel Standards Committee: (1) The Library and Personnel Standards Committee proposes to undertake a study to investigate the establishment of a minimum salary for South Carolina professional librarians for inclusion in ALA's American Libraries Regional Salary Guide; (2) The Library and Personnel Standards Committee requests approval to publish a selected bibliography of library standards and guidelines in the SCLA Handbook. The bibliography will be appended to the Handbook.

Executive Board Meeting
November 15, 1989

1. Approved the recommendation that exhibitors who attended this year's Conference are allowed to buy one advertisement space at half the price during the next year.

2. Approved making the Association Archives Committee a standing committee of SCLA.

National Library Legislative Day

National Library Legislative Day will take place in Washington, DC, on April 24, 1990. This marks the sixteenth year that state librarians and library supporters have called upon their congressional delegation to discuss the federal government's role in libraries and library related-matters. If anyone is interested in attending this year, please notify Jim Johnson, SCLA Federal Relations Coordinator, South Carolina State Library, P.O. Box 11469, Columbia, SC 29211.

Annual Business Meeting
November 15, 1989

1. Approved and accepted the report of the By-laws, Constitution, and Handbook Revision Committee.

2. Accepted the slate of nominees for officers of the Association for 1989/90.
The South Carolina Association of Public Library Administrators has presented its first Outstanding Library Trustee Award to Julius W. McKay, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Richland County Public Library. The award, which is to be presented annually, honors McKay for outstanding service to the Richland County Public Library, for interest in and contribution to the development of library service beyond those of the local community, for creative and effective work in interpreting the library to the community, and for bringing its concerns to the attention of local, state, and national leaders.

Anthony Messineo presented the award to McKay at Friday's Awards Breakfast held in conjunction with the annual convention of the South Carolina Library Association meeting this week in Hilton Head.

Since 1981, McKay has served as Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Richland County Public Library. During this period, the library system has experienced its most significant growth and development. As the result of his untiring dedication and strong leadership, the library's budget has increased more than threefold and its circulation has doubled. A major capital improvements program was initiated including approval in 1984 of a bond issue of $1.55 million dollars to automate the library system and construct the Eastover and Northeast Branch libraries. In FY88, the new Northeast Branch was the fourth busiest library in the state.

Under McKay's leadership and through his unrelenting efforts, the library recently realized approval by a 72% majority of a $27 million bond referendum for a new main library, several branches and an upgrade of the library's computer system. This is the largest bond referendum ever passed in South Carolina for public library construction and the largest for a metropolitan community of its size in the Southeast.

Known for his genteel nature and for always getting the job done, McKay has contributed countless workday hours to the causes of the Richland County Public Library. He has devoted entire days from his busy law practice to attend library functions including travels to Washington, DC, in efforts to obtain a new main library site.

A senior partner of one of the state's largest and most prestigious law firms, Haynesworth, Marion, McKay & Guerard, Julius W. McKay has served his community and state in many ways, including serving as a member and Chairman of Richland County Council in the 1970's. In 1985, he was named by Town and Country magazine as one of the top fifty torts attorneys in the United States.

C. David Warren, Library Director, described McKay as "a long time library friend and champion of libraries and intellectual freedom." Warren also commented that Mr. McKay has been the guiding force behind the high regard held by the citizens of Richland County for their public library.

Ches Martin, Programmer Analyst at Administrative Programming Services, Clemson University, was elected President, BRS North American Users Group for 1989-90. Martin is organizing the program for the BRS Users Group meeting, May 15-18, 1990, in Latham, New York. Martin installed BRS Search™ at Clemson; loaded IAC databases, ERIC, and Agricola and has developed several other local databases.

Teresa Windham has been named Supervisor of the St. Andrews Branch of the Richland County Public Library, Columbia, South Carolina. She was formerly a Branch Librarian at the Northeast Branch.

Governor Carroll A. Campbell, Jr., has appointed E.H. (Chip) Stanley, former president of the Friends of the Richland County Public Library, to the South Carolina State Library Board. Stanley will represent the Second Congressional District in a five year term.

Frankie Cubbedge was recently named the Dean of the University of South Carolina-Aiken Library. Cubbedge has served the campus for a number of years as Director of the Library.

Nancy Washington of the USC Library Processing Center published an article entitled "Focus on the Academic Librarian: Job Satisfaction and Continuing Education Needs" in the fall 1989 issue of the Southeastern Librarian.

Joseph Galbraith is the new Serials Cataloger at Clemson University. Galbraith received his library degree at SUNY-Buffalo.

Katie Bielsky was promoted to Head of the Catalog Department at the College of Charleston Library on July 1. Congratulations Katie!!

Ellen Tillett is the new coordinator of Technical Services at USC-Spartanburg. Tillett received her MLS from UNC-Chapel Hill.

Jackie Rollins is USC-Spartanburg's new Reference/Circulation Librarian. Rollins received her library degree from Drexel University and had been branch manager at the Cleveland Heights Public Library.

Cleta Dunaway is the new Serials Catalog Librarian at the USC Library Processing Center. Dunaway received her library degree at USC and worked for fourteen years at Columbia Bible College as Head of Cataloging.

Dennis Bruce, Director of the Spartanburg County Library, recently moved into his newly built house. Bruce reports that he aged ten years during the twelve months it took to build the house.

Katina Strauch of the College of Charleston Library began publishing a newsletter called (you guessed it) Against the Grain. ATG treats current topics in scholarly publishing, collection development, and acquisitions. For a subscription, send a check for $25 made out to "Against the Grain" and mailing information to Katina Strauch, Coordinator, Charleston Conference, Head, Collection Development, College of Charleston Library, Charleston, Charleston, SC 29424. Sample issues are obtainable from this same address. Strauch also published an article in the October 1989 issue of Learned Publishing, entitled: "The American Library Market: a View From Within."
