A Bibliography of the Scottish Ballad Manuscripts
1730-1825.

Part III

David Herd's Manuscript

Introduction

This MS is in two copies, the first being a copy of the second with some differences which I have noted in my bibliography. In addition, much of the second copy is now missing, though the remaining portion has a few items not in the first. It is thus necessary to treat the first copy as primary and the second as secondary. This is actually the order in which they are now numbered in the British Museum.

Professor F. J. Child of Harvard, in The English and Scottish Popular Ballads, in 5 volumes (1882-1898) extracted the traditional ballads from David Herd's MS. Dr. Hans Hecht, in Songs from David Herd's Manuscripts, printed the songs.

It has sometimes been assumed that between them they printed the whole contents of the Herd MS. This is not altogether so. The following items — seven of which were printed in David Herd's Ancient and Modern Scottish Songs, Heroic Ballads, etc., (Edinburgh, 1776) — were left unprinted by Child and Hecht:

Of all the Scottish Northern Cheifs . . . (HS I 30) H I 37

The Country Swain that haunts the Plain . . . (HS II 238) H I 106
Mourn ye heighlands and Murn ye leighlands I 109b
When Frenrett Castles Ivied wall . . . (HS I 142) I 111
The Duke he was a bonny lad . . . I 120

The Kirks gaing down . . . II 73
SCOTTISH BALLAD MANUSCRIPTS

The Black & the Brown . . . II 73
There was a Lady fair . . . II 85b

Dr. Hecht's volume is a very complete piece of scholarship, perfectly satisfactory as long as one relies on it alone. Its one weakness becomes apparent when it is used along with Herd's MS. The songs are arranged in an order different from the order in Herd's MS, so that the only link between the two is the first-line Index. However, his very complete bibliographical and historical Introduction makes it unnecessary to repeat here what is already in print.

By chance, one page of H II remained behind in Edinburgh, and is now in the University Library (Laing Coll. 358. 2). The two copies of the MS are in the British Museum (Add. MSS 22,311-2).
